Three fatally wounded

By Donna Kimbro and Patrick Foley
Staff writers

MADISON — Two elderly residents and their daughter were found fatally shot late Monday evening.

Dead are Hugh C. Stuart, 84, his wife, Bertie M. Stuart, 80, and their daughter, Ruth Ann Rapoff, 49. They were found in the Stuarts' home, 1623 Third St.

The St. Louis Area Major Case Squad is handling the investigation along with Madison police and the Illinois Division of Criminal Investigation.

A Madison Police Department statement said the police were called at 7:30 p.m. by a relative of the trio. When officers arrived at the scene, all three were pronounced dead.

MADISON COUNTY Deputy Coroner Randy Irwin was not called to the scene until 11:20 p.m.

"This is the first we've heard of it. I don't know why they waited," he said at the scene.

"I'm going to go back and get names (of those in charge at the scene). I want to find out what's going on."

IRWIN SAID Tuesday morning that the "proper procedure" would have been to call the coroner immediately upon discovery of the bodies.

"I don't know who's supposed to

Christmas basket requests Nov. 24

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

Quad-City Area families and individuals wishing to apply for Christmas baskets and related aid through the Salvation Army may do so in person starting Monday, Nov. 24, at the Salvation Army Corps Center, 3007 E. 23rd St.

More than 3,900 people were served through the Salvation Army's "Tree of Lights" program last year, with a total of 1,198 applications received during an extended request period.

APPLICATIONS will be accepted this year only for a two-week period, ending Dec. 5, Capt. Curtiss Hartley, Salvation Army commander, said.

No applications will be taken on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 27, when the office will be closed. Operations will resume Friday and Saturday, Nov. 28-29.

Hours at the office for accepting basket applications will be from 9 a.m. until noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. The only Saturday hours will be on Nov. 29.

THOSE SEEKING assistance are required to go to the center in person, bringing with them adequate identification, Maxine Rutter, office manager, said Friday.

A current rent receipt and the most recent utility bill are required before an application will be completed for each family.

Proof of income also must be shown at the time of application. A current payroll check stub or a Public Aid green card, if the family is served by that agency, will be accepted, Mrs. Rutter said.

THE PERSON APPLYING also must know the income of each person in the household and the ages of each individual living there.

Bed covers needed at Salvation Army

Blankets, quilts, bedspreads and other bedding are being sought by the Salvation Army.

"We are getting quite a few phone calls from people who really need some bed covers," Maxine Rutter, office manager at the Salvation Army Corps Center, 3007 E. 23rd St., said Friday.

Any type of bedding, especially heavier covers, may be taken to the corps headquarters for distribution, she said.

The holiday assistance program, which traditionally provides food baskets, clothing and other Christmas gifts to needy area families, is financed through the local "Tree of Lights" campaign.

This year's fund-raising drive will be launched at a kickoff luncheon at noon, Tuesday, Nov. 25, at the Salvation Army Center. Persons wishing to attend may call 451-7957.

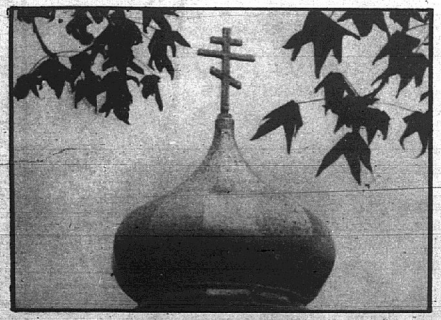

THE DRIVE GOAL will be announced at the kickoff event, Capt. Hartley said.

Service clubs, civic organizations, church and business groups and individuals volunteer their services each year to ring Christmas bells at Salvation Army red kettle sites.

The bell-ringers are being asked to register now to help on specific dates, by calling the number listed above.

The kettles will be placed outside area business places, with the bell-ringing appeal getting under way at 9 a.m. Friday, Nov. 28, the commander said.

Armed robbers take cash register, cash

Unable to open a cash register, an armed man and his accomplice took the register, jumped over a fence and escaped from the Clark Station, 20th Street and Madison Avenue, at 10 p.m. Friday.

The register worth $300, $70 in cash in the register, a total of $110 from a safe and an undetermined quantity of cigarettes were taken by the robbers.

Station attendant Tim Caffendar said two men came inside the station and the taller man walked behind the counter, grabbed him by the neck and pointed a gun in his face, saying "Open the register."

Callendar told police that when the shorter robber, described as being about 5 feet 5 inches tall, tried to open the register but couldn't make it work, the taller man said, "My trigger finger is getting itchy."

The tall man ordered the attendant to open the register, but Callendar found the machine had jammed and was unable to comply. The employee was then told to hand over the key to the safe and get down on the floor.

After the gunman opened the safe and took about $110, someone came to the door and was told by the suspects the station was closed, Callendar reported.

The employee was warned not to get up from the floor and the robbers left the building, with the taller of the two men carrying the register.

The robbers jumped a fence and crossed the alley between Madison and Grand avenues, heading west. They apparently got into an auto at that point, but a search of the downtown area for the vehicle was unsuccessful.

The suspect who held the weapon, believed to be a small caliber, blue-steel revolver with a short barrel, was described in his late 20's, 6 feet 1 inch tall and 175 pounds. He had short Afro-style hair and wore a red shirt and a gold necklace.

The second man was in his early 20's and may have been wearing a blue hat and jacket.

Both men were black.

Tip of the hat

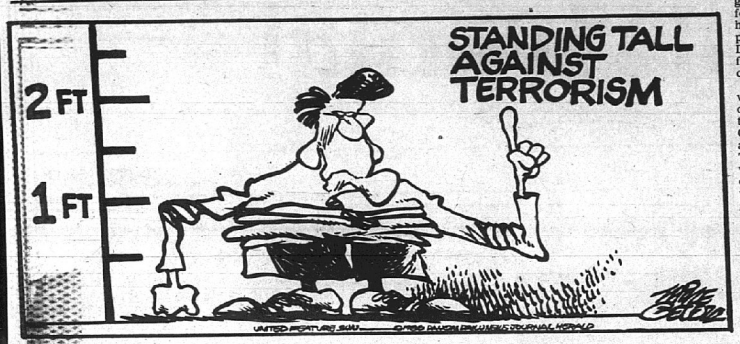

The Mobile Meals program, sponsored by St. Elizabeth Medical Center, is recognized this week for delivering low-cost hot meals to many Quad-City Area senior citizens. The program makes it possible for seniors who are unable to prepare their own meals to have a nutritious meal Monday through Friday. Mobile Meals also gives seniors who live alone a chance to visit with people on a regular basis.

Federal courts require finest judges

To the editor:

The fact that we have to pay greater attention to those nominated for top judicial offices was brought home to me dramatically in a published interview with Judge Daniel Manion, recently approved for the federal appellate court, second highest court in the land.

In the October issue of Conservative Digest, Manion responds to a questions about what he went through in the Senate Judiciary Committee hearings and says: "You ask, 'Is this worth it to be a judge?' The answer is no. But it's worth it if, with the help of people like you, we can beat those shameful liberals who are attacking me personally to get at President Reagan."

His statement is wrong on several counts. First, there is no reluctance on the part of senators to disagree directly with this President — or any president — if we feel he's wrong on something. Senators have many defects and virtues, but shyness is not prominent among them.

Second, he fails to mention that the Senate has confirmed 291 federal appellate and district judges since Ronald Reagan has been President. On only a handful of occasions have we even had a roll call vote.

In general, senators believe that doubts on nominees should be resolved in favor of the President.

But let us assume that Judge Manion was a far-out liberal, a Carter nominee, and the interview had appeared in the magazine The Nation. In that interview, assume he said: "You ask, 'Is this worth it to be a judge?' The answer is no. But it's worth it if, with the help of people like you, we can beat those shameful conservatives who are attacking me personally to get at President Carter."

Either way you put it, the statements do not show the balance and thoughtfulness we should expect from a judge on the federal court of appeals.

I'm not trying to rerun the Manion battle. That decision has been made but this is a not-so-gentle reminder that — under the stewardship of Attorney General Ed Meese — there has been much less care taken in selection of judges for the federal court of appeals than was true under President Reagan's first attorney general, William French Smith.

Under President Carter's attorneys general, 6 percent of the nominees for the federal court of appeals received the lowest possible American Bar Association approval rating, a "qualified" stamp, but with votes of both qualified and unqualified.

During President Reagan's first term, under Attorney General Smith, 5 percent of the nominees fell into that category. Under Meese 6 percent of the nominees so far fall into that category.

Long after the present attorney general retires, those nominated to federal courts will be administering justice under lifetime appointments.

We ought to expect greater care by those who select judicial candidates. We have every right to demand nothing but the finest in those nominees. U.S. SEN. PAUL SIMON

Group seeking binding arbitration

To the editor:

We, members of the Clerical and Kindred Negotiating Committee, Local 2887, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, wish to clarify erroneous information given to the media by the SIUE administration.

1. When we first went into negotiation sessions we used the IBHE (Illinois Board of Higher Education) report to justify our request for a salary increase.

Even though this report was dated 1986, we were told by the administration's negotiation team that this report was incorrect, out of date and could not be used.

However, this is the same report the administration has used to justify giving exorbitant salary increases to SIUE deans.

These raises, to just 10 people, amounted to over $60,000. Out of a $56,000,000 budget, we are only asking for a 2 percent salary increase for over 300 people.

Recently, President Lazerson said to the media, "The thing we've tried to shoot for, with regard to the faculty, professional staff, and administration and everyone else in the world is, we've tried to move toward the 50th percentile. That is the overall plan."

Our question to him is, "What are we, Martians? Are we not of this world?" We were told at the beginning of negotiations that we were underpaid and a most deserving group, yet no move has been made to try to bring the clerical workers' salaries more in line with others in our peer group.

2. In the Nov. 10 issue of SIUE Issues Update distributed campuswide, the statement was made with regard to our session with a federal mediator, "After a review of the positions of both parties, the mediator concluded that the university's offer was responsible and reasonable."

This is a totally false statement. At no time during either our individual or joint sessions did the federal mediator make such a statement. We find it irresponsible and unethical of the administration to publish such a statement.

The mean salary indicated in that article was reported to be $1,097. The salaries of 203 of 286 members of AFSCME Local 2887 fall below this $1,097 mean.

3. To strengthen their argument, the administration's negotiators presented to the federal mediator a list of classification upgrades for the first quarter of the fiscal year, amounting to approximately $20,000.

Unfortunately, they did not point out that 13 of these 17 position upgrades did not cover the people in our bargaining unit.

Point of interest: Some of these 13 people were Ed Leardi, a member of SIUE's negotiating team, and Sue Paul, Janet Hunsche, Ken Ramers, LeAnn Lochhaas and Karen Matkins. These people are employed in the SIUE Personnel Office and do not belong in any bargaining unit.

We have tried to bargain in good faith with this administration but have found it extremely difficult because of their unwillingness to do so.

We, the committee, felt that this disinformation must be clarified to the public. All we are asking is a fair salary increase or arbitration. Why is this administration afraid of binding arbitration?

U.S. still largest exporter in world

To the editor:

It seems hard to believe, but as recently as 1981 the United States exported more manufactured goods than it imported from the rest of the world.

Today we suffer from annual trade deficits in the $125 billion to $150 billion range, a profound imbalance that has wreaked havoc among certain segments of our economy, eliciting widespread demands for protectionism.

Those demands must be resisted. We must keep in mind that despite the trade deficit, the U.S. remains the largest exporter in the world.

For us to launch the world into a trade war would be the height of folly. There would be no winners in such a cataclysm — only losers, and we stand to lose more than anyone.

We do not need to guess what the consequences of protectionism would be. We need only thumb a few pages back into our history to the early 1930s, when Congress tried to protect domestic industry with the infamous Smoot-Hawley Tariff. That ill-conceived act was perhaps the major cause of the Great Depression.

The economies of the world are much more interrelated today than they were in the 1930s, and the effects of a trade war would be even more calamitous now.

There can be no question that some of our trading partners engage in unfair practices that victimize American businesses and workers.

But we have laws that apply to such situations and the Reagan administration is enforcing them, winning a steady parade of concessions from nations that discriminate against us.

Additionally, the declining dollar is enhancing our trade prospects considerably. The trade deficit rose in tandem with the rise of the dollar, and there is reason to believe it will decline the same way.

Since the spring of 1985, the dollar has fallen about 40 percent. It takes time for currency ratios to be reflected in trade statistics, but I think we have seen the first glimmer of improvement. Our deficit in August dropped to $13 billion from $18 billion the month before.

Which is not to suggest we should pop the corks on our champagne bottles just yet.

But our economy is healthy and growing, producing far more new jobs than have been lost to foreign competition.

American business is responding to the challenge, becoming more efficient and productive.

We are on the right track and, if the forces of protectionism can be resisted, I am certain the flow of trade will eventually return to an even keel.

Firm chosen to install Arlington water system

A "green light" has been given for a water line to be extended to the Arlington Heights residential neighborhood, which has been relying on wells.

On Nov. 12, the Arlington Water District held a special meeting at the Arlington Golf Course clubhouse to discuss bids for construction of a water system and to award the contract after a complete review.

For the water district's engineering firm, Corlew and Associates, Edwardsville, Engineer Dennis Denby gave a report on the bids that were received. He recommended that the district award the project to the lowest bidder, the M & I Construction Co., East St. Louis.

Additional discussion and questions were addressed by the board members, the engineering firm and residents who attended.

Water District Trustee Durwood Cook made a motion that the Arlington Water District award the bid to M & I. Trustee Jack Taylor seconded the motion, and the board unanimously voted to do so.

All of the information and documentation will be sent to the U.S. Farm and Home Administration for review and is subject to its concurrence, since the administration will be providing financing for the project. An answer from the FHA is expected in two weeks.

After the meeting, the residents were invited to review the blueprints.

The next meeting of the district is scheduled for Dec. 4 at 7 p.m. at the home of Chairman Jerry Lilley, 90 Shirlwin Drive.

If a large number of Arlington residents tell trustees they desire to attend the meeting, the location will be changed to the golf course clubhouse.

Don Partney is elected to contractors' national board

Donald Partney

Donald Partney Jr., president and treasurer of Granite Sheet Metal Works, Granite City, has been elected to the board of directors of the Sheet Metal and Air Conditioning Contractors' National Association (SMACNA).

The election was held at SMACNA's 43rd anniversary convention in Nashville, Tenn.

Nationally, Partney has served as chairman and member of the Industrial Duct Construction Standards Committee and as a member of the Duct Construction Standards Committee and the Technical Steering Committee.

An active member of the Southern Illinois Sheet Metal Contractors' Organization (SISCO), Partney is currently vice president as he makes his second trip around the officer chairs. He served as president from 1974 to 1977.

Partney is also involved in Sheet Metal Workers' International Association Local 268. He served as chairman of Health, Welfare, Pension and Vacation Funds. He has also been chairman of the Legislative Committee. Partney chaired the Industry Fund since its inception in 1974 and has been a member of the Labor Negotiation Committee since 1974.

He has served on the executive board of the Southern Illinois Users Council and was president in 1984. He is a past president and a 24-year member of the Madison County Chapter of the Illinois Society of Professional Engineers.

Partney has also been a member of the Industrial Manufacturers Association for 10 years, the Southern Illinois Builders Association for 14 years and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers for the past 24 years.

He has just completed his presidential term in the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce, which includes Granite City, Madison, Venice, Pontoon Beach and Mitchell. He is president of the Granite City Rotary Club and vice president of the Tri-City Area Young Men's Christian Association (YMCA).

Partney lives in Granite City. He has three children, Dennis, 23 years old, Darin, 20, and Dorothy, 15.

SMACNA, an international trade association representing 5,000 contributing contractors in the sheet metal and air-conditioning industry, has national offices in Vienna, Va., outside Washington, D.C.

Levee repair fund applications due

Federal assistance for the repair of recently flood-damaged levees or other flood control structures must be requested by Dec. 10.

The 30-day "clock" for written requests to obtain consideration for assistance began ticking on Nov. 10, it was announced by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, St. Louis District.

Public Law 84-99 provides for federal assistance in the repair of flood control structures, under certain conditions. It calls for a 30-day period, following a flood event, during which written application for such aid must be made.

Owners or managers of flood-damaged structures are requested to address their letters to:

District Engineer, U.S. Army Engineer District, St. Louis, ATTN: LMSOD-E, 210 Tucker Blvd., North, St. Louis, Mo., 63101-1986.

GC citizens reminded to obey burning laws

GRANITE CITY — Granite City Police Chief Bill Harris is reminding residents that the city has laws regarding the burning of leaves and rubbish.

Harris said it is unlawful to burn leaves or rubbish on any asphalt-paved street. It is also illegal to burn leaves or rubbish so close to a building or house that it would endanger the structure.

No burning is allowed between sunset and sunrise, Harris added.

Violators could be fined from $1 to $200 for each violation, he said.

State legislators urging pay hike for SIUE clerks

Two state legistors have signed a petition urging higher wages for clerical workers at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville (SIUE).

Sen. Sam Vadalabene, D-Edwardsville, and Rep. Sam Wolf, D-Granite City, signed the petition last week, a representative of the employees' union said.

More than 1,000 signatures have been collected, said Peggy Zimmerman, an organizer for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME).

The petition says those signing it support the effort to get raises for clerical workers "sufficient to bring their salaries above the poverty level and more in line with state agencies."

The petition will be presented to the university when contract talks resume, Zimmerman said.

On Nov. 5, SIUE clerical workers rejected a contract offer that included a 6 percent raise. AFSCME has been seeking a 9.5 percent increase, Zimmerman said.

The contract is a wage reopener from a previous contract.

A strike vote has not been taken.

Pat Devine, vice president of AFSCME Local 2887, said: "We'll probably try to exhaust all avenues to negotiation." A strike is still possible, she said.

There are about 320 clerical workers in the bargaining unit. About 200 are AFSCME members, Zimmerman said.

Vadalabene said he favors legislation that would close the gap in salaries between university and state civil service employees.

Robert Bruker, assistant to the president at SIUE, said the legislature 10 years ago raised the salaries of state civil services workers by $100 a month. University civil service workers did not receive the raise, he said. As a result, subsequent raises — based on percentages — widened the gap in salaries of the two groups, Bruker said.

Clerical workers are university civil service employees, Bruker said. The two groups of civil service employees are administered by separate civil service systems.

Wolf said he favors unionization at SIUE and signed the petition to urge resumption of negotiations.

Thoroughbred horse race betting increases in 1986

Fairmount Park's attendance during the 1986 thoroughbred racing season declined slightly over 1985 but the total amount of money bet was slightly more than last year, according to Brian Zander, general manager.

Attendance of the 167 racing days was 782,639, off slightly from 1985. The total handle, however, was $89,306,527, up from last year's total of $89,088,871.

Zander said that, overall, he was "rather satisfied" with the thoroughbred season, which ended Nov. 8.

This was also the first thoroughbred season in which Fairmount, located at Collinsville, has operated under legislation that gave the track "a small amount" of tax relief; this helped the track's financial fortunes, Zander said.

After losing money each of the past five years, Fairmount now appears to be close to making a profit, he said.

Fairmount's increase came during a year when the racing schedule was changed. The track dropped its races on Sunday afternoons, and for the first time ever scheduled racing programs on Monday nights.

One of the effects of this change was that it appeared to bolster Saturday attendance and betting, he said. If a racing fan wanted to go to the track on the weekend, now he had to go on Saturday.

While the Monday night programs proved popular, Zander said, there were still some who preferred the Sunday afternoon races.

As a result, Zander said, the track is planning to schedule Sunday race cards next year between the end of the professional football season around Feb. 1 and the start of professional baseball in April.

Monday night races would probably begin after Easter Sunday, he said.

One factor that may have helped Fairmount was that the baseball Cardinals fell out of the pennant chase early, reducing interest in the team this summer.

When the Cardinals were in the playoffs and World Series in 1985, Fairmount's attendance was noticeably lower than at that at the same time this year, Zander said.

"On playoff nights, we averaged 800 to 1,000 more people just because the Cardinals were not playing," he said.

The track also had success with its preferred customer program, which rewarded frequent patrons with coupons for free admission, parking or other items, Zander said.

Smith Corp. to sell its data subsidiary

The A.O. Smith Corp. board has voted to sell A.O. Smith Data Systems Inc. In August, Smith retained Merrill Lynch Capital Markets Group to assist the company in identifying a course of action to maximize the value of this subsidiary to the shareholdres.

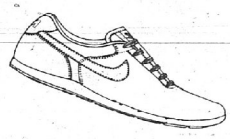

Chairman, Thomas I. Dolan, in announcing the decision to sell the business, said he is convinced that, in view of Smith Data's specialized financial service market, the business will prosper to a greater extent under ownership by a company with broader involvement in the data field

Day care providers being sought in GC

The Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS) is seeking adults willing to provide child care part-time to infants, toddlers and preschoolers.

These adults will be part of the Therapeutic Family Day Care Project, an innovative early intervention program for young children at risk of maltreatment.

Since May 1984, the Therapeutic Family Day Care Project has served 90 young children and their families in rural counties, Bond, Clinton and Washington, as well as in Granite City, Collinsville and East St. Louis.

The project has two goals: to provide high-quality, out-of-home child care for young children at risk of maltreatment; and to improve these children's mothers' care-giving skill.

Family day care providers care for young children for 20-35 hours each week, and are reimbursed at the rate of $13.11 per day per child.

Providers transport the children to and from their homes, and are reimbursed at 20.5 cents per mile.

Persons interested in receiving more information about this project may contact Carol S. Klass, project director, or Lela Prince, day care specialist, at 875-9300, extensions 254 or 257.

Bass most popular in Parkview voting

Parkview Elementary School students took part in the selection of a state fish on Oct. 31. Sixth grade Idea Lab students, instructed by Mrs. Patty Moore and Mrs. Marilyn Bilyeu, conducted the election.

After studying about elections, the students made campaign posters and ballot boxes, explained election procedures to the other students, and manned the polls during the election.

Winner of the state fish election at Parkview was the large mouth bass, with 117 votes. Runners-up were: channel catfish, 92 votes; bluegill, 88; coho salmon, 26, carp, 22, white crappie, 3; and write-ins, 4.

Citizens want to buy Dunbar

An Ad Hoc Committee of Concerned Citizens and the Dunbar Alumni Association will hold a public meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 19, to discuss whether to try to purchase the Dunbar School building.

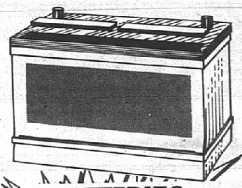

George Smith, former principal of Dunbar, is the acting chairman of the committee.

The meeting will be held at the Farrar Terrell Memorial Center, 901 W. Washington St., Madison, at 7 p.m.

The primary purpose of the meeting will be to determine if the group can purchase the former school, which is owned by Madison School District 12. It is hoped to renovate it for use as a residential center in which senior citizens could live, the chairman said.

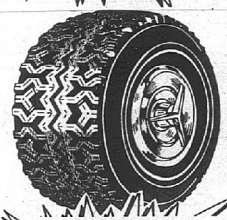

He added that all interested residents are invited to attend the initial meeting.

Installment-plan tuition approved

Eastern Illinois University students will be able to pay their tuition and fees on the installment plan beginning in the 1987 spring semester. The board of governors of State Colleges and Universities approved the proposal by President Stan Rives.

Under the plan, the first installment, plus a $20 service charge, will be due at registration. The second payment will be due at mid-semester. EIU is at Charleston.

Rives said the plan was developed as a result of requests from students "and since I believe it may alleviate difficulties in certain cases, I was happy to present the plan to the board."

Purchase of fire alarm equipment to update the existing systems in Thomas and Taylor halls also wa approved by the board. Included in the equipment is a fire-alarm master control box for each building and a smoke detection system for the hallways. Cost of the equipment, to be installed by university personnel, is $65,747.

Rives reported to the board that the Tenth Decade Campaign has topped 27 percent of its goal, with $1,339,166. The campaign was started to commemorate the 90th anniversary of Eastern's founding in 1895. Goal of the five-year development program is to raise $5,000,000 in private contributions by December 1989.

Best guess

A $100 GIFT CERTIFICATE for K mart is presented to 12-year-old Cherie Moore by John Foyse, manager of the International House of Pancakes at Nameoki and Pontoon roads. The youngster made the only correct guess of almost 3,000 entries in the "Guess the weight of the pumpkin" promotion at IHOP. Her guess of 86 pounds, 14 ounces was exactly the same as the weight of the large pumpkin.

School boards to talk of lawsuits and state funding

Should the Illinois General Assembly take additional steps to limit damages from lawsuits and to eliminate frivolous suits?

Should people who live in mobile homes pay taxes that more adequately reflect the value of their homes and the value of the services they receive?

Should the General Assembly fund the programs called for in the school reform bill it passed last year?

These and other issues will be voted on by school board members totaling 5,000 from all over Illinois on Nov. 22 in Chicago. The votes will determine the official policies of the Illinois Association of School Boards (IASB), a voluntary association of local boards which informs and advises its members about governing schools and represents their views before the legislature.

The voting will be part of a four-day conference of public school officials jointly sponsored by IASB, the Illinois Association of School Administrators and the Illinois Association of School Business Officials. The conference, Nov. 21-24 at the Palmer House, features panel discussions, workshops, speakers, and other events for school officials.

Representatives from IASB member school boards will vote on a number of issues, including resolutions that would:

- Support legislation that goes farther than the insurance bill recently signed by the governor to limit damage awards, and streamline the civil litigation process to avoid lengthy litigation and frivolous lawsuits. The sponsors argued that SB 1200 is a "good beginning" but that it "was the product of much compromise and did not address all the issues as fully as desired."
- Call on the Assembly to fund the provisions of its education reform law and commit itself to a comprehensive program of upgrading the public schools. "The success of reform is based on a full commitment of the General Assembly and the governor to make education a priority for the future of Illinois," said the sponsor of the resolution.
- Seek legislation allowing school districts to levy a tax to pay utilities while encouraging and enhancing conservation."
- Support legislation repealing an election code provision that became effective last January, allowing school districts to place a referendum on the ballot only when voters are scheduled to vote for candidates for public office. "This appears to be a deliberate attempt by legislators to diminish the number of elections held in any one municipality or school district," said the sponsor.
- Seek legislation to equalize the taking authority of dual and unit districts, so units could tax at a rate equal to the sum of an elementary and a high school district. The current disparity denies students in unit districts equal access to local funds.
- Create a committee to study tax increment financing districts and their effect on school districts. The laws governing tax increment financing don't give school boards any voice in making decisions about creating the TIF districts, the sponsors argue, even though a TIF can have "an enormous impact" on schools in the area.

Panel and workshop sessions this year will cover a broad range of topics of concern to school officials.

Several sessions are designed to help local school boards cope with the insurance crisis. Others include status reports on programs implemented under last year's school reform law; exemplary programs in districts around the state; and ways schools can help "at-risk" children.

pronounce them dead, but I don't think the police can. We should have been called immdeiately."

Madison Police Detective Paul Bargiel said Tuesday that "we do not need a coroner to tell us they are dead."

Irwin was also upset that the bodies had been moved before he arrived on the scene.

"Those bodies were moved. I didn't want to have anything to do with it (when he learned they had been moved)," he said.

"I DON'T KNOW what time she'll (Coroner Dallas Burke will) use (as the time of death). I guess the time the police entered the house and found the bodies," Irwin said.

"They had their press statement out before they called us."

Neighbors speculated the shootings might have occurred Monday afternoon, but none reported hearing gunshots.

Neighbors stunned by murders

By Bill Milligan

MADISON — Sophia Leleniewski was out on her front porch snacking on potato chips early Tuesday morning, well past midnight.

She snacks when she's nervous.

Leleniewski and her husband were at home Monday when their next-door neighbors, Hugh, 84, and Bertie Stuart, 80, together with the Stuarts' daughter, Ruth Ann Rapoff, 49, Granite City, were shot to death in the Stuart home at 1623 Third St., Madison.

"This was a nice neighborhood....until this happened," said Ed Leleniewski. "They were a nice couple. It's a shock — this happening to an elderly couple like that."

Neighbors who spoke with the Press-Record/Journal agreed the Stuarts were nice people.

Rich Niehaus, who lives on the other side of the Stuart home, said he had been barbecuing in his back yard from 2 p.m. until 4:30 p.m. and had heard nothing unusual at the Stuart home.

"They were quiet folks, elderly. They stayed in," Niehaus said.

Mike McCormick lives across the street from the Stuart home. He said the first thing he noticed was police cars speeding up to the home and officers "jumping out real fast" about 7:30 p.m.

"The police came around to all the neighbors asking if we had heard anything or seen anything," McCormick said. "Seems strange that three people could be shot and nobody hear it."

McCormick said police had indicated that one of the Stuarts' daughters had found her parents and sister at the home at around 7 p.m.

He said he had heard nothing. He had been in his house, installing a bathtub.

"I don't know why anybody would want to do that to them," McCormick said. "They were nice people. They never bothered anyone."

Leleniewski said the Stuarts had a close family.

"They were family people," Sophia Leleniewski said.

"They were good neighbors," she said. "They kept an eye out for all of their neighbors."

Wilson milers receive awards

The Wilson School Milers Club enjoyed a breakfast of apple cider and doughnuts while award ribbons were given to each of the 70 club participants. The Ault fifth grade class was presented with a trophy for having the most students complete the program.

The Milers Club was started six years ago by Mrs. Sandra Bowler, the physical education instructor at Wilson School, to improve students' physical fitness and increase their endurance.

At the beginning of October, students in the club went to school each day a half-hour early. They started by running three laps on a course set by Mrs. Bowler. Each week, she added laps until the students were running a total of seven laps, which equalled a mile.

Parents helping her with the scorekeeping and breakfast were Mrs. Pittman, Mrs. Stagman, Mrs. Howard, Mrs. Myers and Mrs. Smothers.

Acoustic

New 'Heavy Wood' Sound

"We're not like any other band around," says Scott Nienhaus of Acoustic. "You might call what we play 'heavy wood'."

As Nienhaus explains it, heavy wood is similar to heavy metal music, but different in that it is played on acoustical instruments. He plays guitar and sings for the group, and is joined by Todd Hellam, who plays violin. The two formed Acoustic in 1985, and have since added Chris Cassamento on keyboards, (he also plays guitar and sings), Rick Rahmberg on acoustic bass guitar and Lee Kram on percussion (playing congas with bass drum and high hat).

Nienhaus says, "Years ago we used to call ourselves the 'Great Balls of String Band,' and were fairly well known around town. In 1979, we opened for Poco at Kiel Auditorium, and another time for the Ozark Mountain Daredevils (both country rock groups)."

Nienhaus said the duo expanded with interested musicians just "sitting in" at performances. The name Acoustic came from the title of an album by mandolin player David Grissman.

"Since we stress an acoustic style of music, the name seemed just right," he added.

"We play classic rock, older songs – from the late 60s, early 70s and a little country rock. We also do some progressive bluegrass, which is quicker, tighter and higher energy than what is generally called bluegrass," he says.

The group also plays its own arrangements of standard classics, such as "a rocked-out version" of Aaron Copland's "Hoedown."

But the group's favorite songs are those recorded by Buffalo Springfield.

"It's music that generally isn't being done anymore. People under the age of 20 come to hear us play and say they can't believe the music we do. They love it," Nienhaus says.

Acoustic is performing currently Thursday and Friday evenings at the Webster Grill and Cafe on Big Bend Blvd. and Saturday evenings at Twenty North on Vandeventer Avenue.

How to choose a doctor

(Dr. William Tansye discusses questions that patients should ask when searching for a new physician. A board certified orthopedic surgeon, Dr. Tansey practices in Downers Grove. He is a member of the Illinois State Medical Society.)

One of the more important decisions people make is choosing the right physician for themsleves and their families. Making that decision may be easier if you have knowledge of a physician's practice, experience and qualifications.

When seeking a physician, start by asking your friends and relatives for recommendations. They'll be able to give you some insight into how their doctors interact with patients and hwo confident they are in their doctors' abilities.

In addition to your friends, your local county medical society can help. Most county societies maintain referral services and will supply the names of several physicians practicing in the medical specialty and geographical area you desire.

It's important to choose a physician who suits your needs. A good physician/patient relationship can be the cornerstone of successful medical treatment. When judging whether a doctor is right for you and your family, two questions should be answered to your satisfaction:

- Does the doctor take time with each patient to answer questions and explain procedures? With today's complicated medical treatments, it is very important that you will be able to fully understand the physician's instructions.
- Does the physician have appropriate office staff and procedures to take care of the numbers of patients scheduled? For example, while appointment delays often occur due to emergencies, continual long office waits can signal a procedural problem.

Also, don't be afraid to inquire about the physician's fee structure. Be sure to ask whether he or she will accept reimbursement from health insurers as payment in full or if you will be expected to pay the difference.

Attempting to judge a physician's qualifications is a difficult aspect of choosing a physician. The first thing to look for is licensure by the State of Illinois. Qualified practitioners are issued licenses by the Illinois Department of Registration and Education.

Full-licensed physicians must have graduated from an accredited medical school, receiving degrees of Medical Doctor (MD), Doctor of Osteopathy (DO) or their equivalents. Accreditation of a physician's medical school can be verified by contacting the Liaison Committee on Medical Education which is affiliated with the American Medical Association in Chicago.

As part of their training, physicians also must complete an accredited residency program in the pertinent medical specialty. As with medical schools, acceptable status of a doctor's residency program can be verified by the AMA-affiliated Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education.

Another factor worth considering is whether the physician is "board certified" in a particular specialty. Each medical specialty has an evaluation examination and other requirements to certify that a doctor is competent in that specialty.

Board certication can be verified by checking the American Medical Directory of Physicians in the United States: The Geographical Register of Physicians. Copies should be available in local libraries.

Finally, since hospital medical staffs credential physicians, check to see at which hospital(s) the doctor has admitting or surgical privileges. Be sure you would be willing to be treated at one of those hospitals should the need arise later.

Folowing are some places to contact for help when looking for a new doctor:

- County medical societies — The physician's local medical society where patients may get referrals and informatoin or make complaints about medical care. In Downstate counties, you can find the medical society by calling directory assistance or your local hospital's medical staff office.
- Illinois State Medical Society(ISMS) — While ISMS does not make individual referrals, it can direct you to the appropriate county medical society or hospital. Contact ISMS at (312) 782-1654, 20 N. Michigan AVe., Chicago, Ill. 60602.
- American Medical Association (AMA) — Maintains an extensive library of medical information and staffs the Liaison Committee on Medical Education and the Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education. AMA is located at 535 N. Dearborn, Chicago, Ill. 60601, (313) 645-5000.
- Illinois Department of Registration and Education — The official licensing body for physicians. Contact the Department at the State of Illinois Center, 100 W. Randolph St., Suite 9-300, Chicago, Ill. 60601, (312) 917-4500; or at 320 W. Washington St., Springfield, Ill. 62786, (217) 785-0800.

Drug prevention program offered

Piasa Health Care is offering drug abuse prevention programs to parent-teacher organizations in Madison County this year. Some of the school districts have already taken advantage of Piasa's prevention services and are implementing primary prevention programs in elementary and junior high school.

Besides educating students, another aspect is parent education. Piasa's prevention program offers presentations to parents of elementary age children on strategies they can use to reduce the likelihood that their children will get involved in substance abuse during their teenage years.

"We have to start early," Debbie Bozzardi, a prevention specialist from Piasa, said. "By the time parents notice symptoms of abuse in their teen, prevention is too late. Prevention needs to take place while kids are still healthy." She can be called at 345-5200 or Jean Schram at 656-8112.

"WE SERVICE WHAT WE SELL"

Don't hesitate. Go ahead and ask. . .

Have you ever wanted to ask a question but waited. . . thinking that you'd find the answer sooner or later? OK, so it might not be earth shaking, but still, knowing the answer was important to you.

It's important to us, too. That's why Illinois Power Company customer service representatives are always available to answer your questions about things that concern you, like. . .

"Can you tell me how budget billing works? Why is my neighbor's utility bill less than mine? How do I get service in my name? What do I need to do if I move? What can Illinois Power do for low income or fixed income customers?"

When you stop in or call your Illinois Power customer service representative you can have those questions and many others answered. . . every business day. Just check your phone directory for the number. Of course, your calls regarding emergencies will be answered immediately, at any time.

But, don't hesitate. Asking your question is as important as having your answer.

Let Ears Turn Curly-Green From Selection At Salad Bar

Salad bars offer a wide variety of low-calorie, low-fat morsels to tickle the most fickle taste buds. But beware! Poor selections and large portions can add up to more calories than expected.

Good choices are those that contain fresh greens, such as spinach and lettuce, and vegetables like cucumbers, tomatoes, radishes, carrots and sweet peppers.

Spinach and other green leafy vegetables are loaded with vitamins A and C. They also offer substantial quantities of thiamin, riboflavin, iron and potassium. Thus, when making a salad, make sure greens are the main ingredient.

Cheese, eggs, meat, bacon and olives are examples of high-fat ingredients. Avoid them or limit portions to keep a salad low in fat and calories. Remember, a salad bar only will work if willpower is used to resist the often tasty and tempting "fatty" selections.

Be cautious about salad dressing as well. If available, choose a reduced-calorie salad dressing. Otherwise, control the amount of dressing used, choose a vinegar-oil dressing and/or dilute rich dressings with vinegar, water or both. To restrict calories further, totally avoid salad dressing. Try lemon juice as a flavor enhancer. Squeeze it on salad for a zesty, fat-free dressing.

Many popular salad bars offer more than just fresh vegetables and salad dressings. Frequently available there are fresh fruit, dessert-like gelatins, bean or potato salads, coleslaws and pasta salads. Once again, it is important to choose wisely. Watch out for hidden fats in these selections. Enjoy favorites, but limit portions of high-fat salads to a sampling, a teaspoonful serving.

The following recipe makes a colorful side dish or an excellent luncheon salad when served on a bed of chopped spinach. It can be prepared a day ahead of time since the oil and vegetable flavors improve after blending.

Israeli Vegetable Salad

- 2 fresh tomatoes
- 2 large cucumbers
- 2 fresh green peppers
- ½ small onion
- 1 to 2 tbsp. olive oil
- Freshly ground black pepper

Dice tomatoes, cucumbers, peppers and onion into cubes ½ inch or smaller.

Put them into salad bowl. Add oil and pepper. Let stand at room temperature at least 30 minutes before serving.

Yields 4 servings. Each serving provides about 70 calories, 4 gm. fat, 9 mg. sodium and no cholesterol.

Reprinted with permission from the American Heart Association Cookbook, c1984 by the American Heart Association Inc.

Cheese Cup

Invert a 16-ounce jar of any flavor cheese spread. Decorate with slivered almonds, green pepper, pimento or sesame seeds.

Serve with fruit, fresh vegetables and/or crackers.

Balanced diet can help reduce stress

In this workaday world, every successful executive – home or office style – needs a balanced diet to avoid tension and to keep from feeling rundown.

Harvey M. Ross, a psychologist, calls eating sanely a "lifestyle" because it embraces the means of staying well and feeling energetic. Together with June Roth, a clinical nutritionist, he has put hints for successful living into a book, The Executive Success Diet (McGraw-Hill, $16.95).

Their formula is not a 300-page tome. It embraces a simple philosophy: eating moderately and nutritiously.

For instance, they suggest the 20-minute coffee break be put to good use – not with a cup of coffee, but with a piece of fruit. A soda or candy bar, is only a 20-minute pickup; but with fruit there is a two-hour continuous supply of glucose which is metabolized more slowly than the sugar in a candy bar, says Roth.

Ross sees people in his practice who are affected unknowingly by their poor eating habits.

"Changing their diet is not a panacea, but they get something more out of their psycho-therapy after a few months. They become more aware of how they can control themselves," he says.

He relates the body's success in reducing stress to its ability to function in other ways, citing recent studies relating stress and immunity.

"People who are more stressed are the ones who get ill the most. Diet by itself certainly does not reduce stress. But anybody can use the tools to deal with stress. The clear head and an energetic, healthful body – without those tools you don't have a chance," he says.

Handling tension involves "control," a word that creeps into his vocabulary on many subjects. First, it is necessary to brainstorm for solutions, choose a solution and act on it.

"Then, very importantly, release it (the source of tension). Let it go," he says.

They feel a lot of people muster the energy to do their work at their workplace, but sacrifice family time by not feeling up to participating in leisure activities.

"When an executive has a high-fat lunch, he is worthless for two hours. He is not functioning at optimum levels. It affects family life if the executive comes home exhausted," she says.

"Let's also take a housewife. She doesn't have time to be taking naps all day. Her day is not 10 or 12 hours long either," says Roth.

They suggest eating meals at their appropriate times, staying away from high-fat and excessively sugary foods, avoiding heavy intake of alcohol and dropping cigarettes from the daily routine. The diet in their book includes a menu plan for 1,000 calories a day and offers information on how to achieve and maintain weight loss with a variety of foods.

Exercise is a major part of their regimen. Roth suggests a walk of two miles a day to keep fit. She stresses that more energetic aerobics, like dancing, are not necessary, although the key to regular exercise is liking it.

She swims almost every day.

"It is a great effort to make it to the pool sometimes, but I make an appointment with myself," she says.

All the benefits of exercise are not obvious at first, just like the first meal on a diet. But after a few months, the body wants to do it because it gets better at it.

Roth says that once the body has been on a diet, there usually is a levelling-off point where the body realizes the correct weight which can be maintained over the years.

They suggest ways to keep a healthful regimen away from home, too. In the book they tell how stowing an apple in a briefcase can replace a coffee-and-doughnut break with an appealing, transportable source of long-lasting energy.

Ross does not always carry an emergency supply when traveling, but Roth usually stashes some whole wheat crackers and peanut butter so she can select her own snack.

The book is available at many book stores or can be ordered by calling 1-800-ALL-BOOK.

KRUNCHERS!™ HIT TOWN

New chips burst with big potato taste

Krunchers have arrived! These extra thick and hearty chips have a taste so bold no bag can hold them. While there have been no injuries, reports are pouring in of people being struck by the unique new chip.

Krunchers! Krowd shows support

"It was like an explosion in my mouth!" Alvin V. Chippelman exclaimed. "I was used to chips that went, well... 'mush' when I bit them. But these Krunchers! Wow!"

100% Peanut oil cited

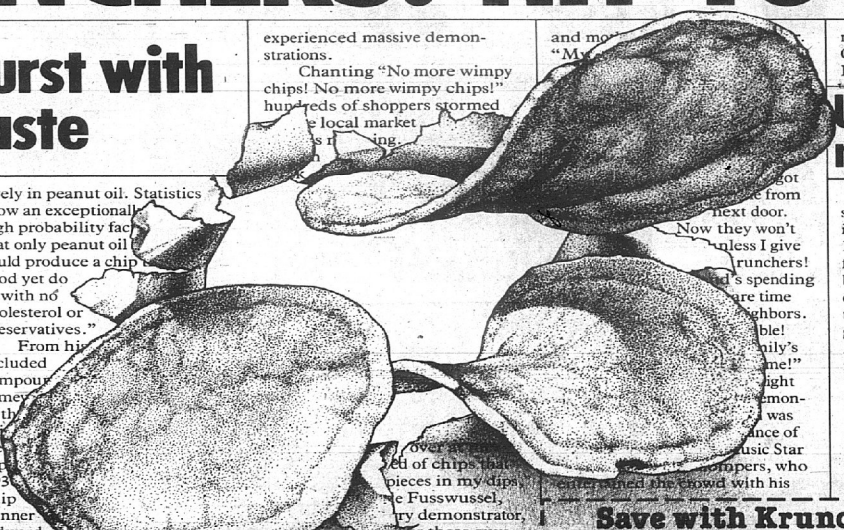

Speaking from Washington, Ada Spud, high ranking government home economist attributed Krunchers! unique krunch to its ingredients.

"Our latest studies reveal Krunchers! are cooked exclusively in peanut oil. Statistics show an exceptionally high probability fac... that only peanut oil ... could produce a chip ... good yet do ... so with no ... cholesterol or preservatives."

Regardless of how the Krunchers! krunch is achieved, consumers apparently are just glad that it is. In fact stores which have not yet begun stocking the new chips have experienced massive demonstrations.

Chanting "No more wimpy chips! No more wimpy chips!" hundreds of shoppers stormed ... local market ... ing.

"I've just got to get Krunchers!" wailed Sally Munchelstein, another demonstrator newest release, "My Mama Ran Off With An Accountant, Now I Got Them Wimpy Chip Blues."

Unique flavors make a big hit

Krunchers! groundswell of support also seems to extend to its two additional flavors. Krunchers! Mesquite Bar-b-que fanclub spokesman and trail boss, Billy Bob Bart commented on that flavor's popularity. "It's the only chip that's really got that good mesquite bar-b-que flavor." After he was introduced to the new Jalapeño flavor he added, "just wait till the boys try this! Yeeeehaaaaa!"

Yes, America, at last the reign of weak-kneed wimpy chips is over. Krunchers! are here! Potato chips will never be the same.

Mexican-flavored cheese spread

Spread party cheese with ethnic flavor

Americans have a big appetite for cheese and Mexican-style foods. In the last 15 years, cheese consumption has nearly doubled from 12 to 23 pounds per person, while Mexican food, once thought by some to be just a fad, continues to be a favorite in the ethnic category.

A companion trend in American eating is a taste for hot, spicy foods. Proof is the popularity of Creole and Cajun foods, as well as the variety and number of peppers available at the local produce counter.

Southwest Party Spread combines these eating trends in an appetizer well suited for a large gathering. The recipe combines cheddar and cream cheeses, taco seasonings and mild green chilies in a cheesecake-like mixture. A topping of sour cream and salsa, a spicy tomato relish created in Mexico, is added during the final stages of baking.

Once chilled, the spread is garnished with avocado slices and red peppers, and served with a hearty supply of tortilla chips.

During the upcoming holidays a supply of cheese can be kept on hand for both planned and impromptu entertaining. Cream cheese is a popular base not only for cakes but can be used in holiday dips and spreads like this one inspired by Southwestern flavors.

It can be blended with cheddar and blue-veined cheese varieties to make a cheese log or ball, then garnished with chopped nuts or chopped fresh parsley. Even simpler is spreading cream cheese with chutney and serving with crackers.

Southwest party spread

- 2 pkg. (8 oz. each) cream cheese, softened
- 2 cups (8 oz.) shredded cheddar cheese
- 2 cups dairy sour cream
- 1 pkg. (1.25 oz.) taco seasoning mix
- 3 eggs
- 1 can (4 oz.) mild chopped green chilies, drained
- ⅓ cup mild or hot salsa
- Avocado slices
- Hot red peppers
- Cilantro
- Tortilla chips

Beat cream cheese and cheddar cheese until light and fluffy.

Stir in one cup sour cream and taco seasoning mix. Beat in eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Fold in chilies.

Pour into 9-inch springform pan. Bake 35 to 40 minutes at 350° or until center of cake is just firm.

Remove from oven. Cool 10 minutes.

Combine remaining sour cream with salsa. Spoon over top of cake. Return to oven. Bake 5 minutes.

Cool completely on wire rack. Refrigerate, covered, several hours or overnight.

To serve, place on large serving platter. Loosen sides of cake with spatula. Carefully remove sides of pan.

Try mushroom mania

- 1 lb. whole mushrooms
- ½ cup chopped parsley
- 2 tbsp. onion, minced
- 1 tbsp. dry sherry
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/8 tsp. white pepper

Line baking pan with aluminum foil. Place mushrooms, caps down, one layer only on foil.

Sprinkle with parsley, onion, sherry, salt and pepper. Cover with second sheet of aluminum foil. Crimp edges of both sheets together.

Place in 350° oven 20 to 25 minutes.

Note: Favorite herbs will give mushrooms an individual taste.

Diabetes screening Nov. 18

Ask the dietitian

Dear Dietitian,

Q. I was recently told by my doctor that I have "borderline" Diabetes Mellitus and that all I needed to do to control it was follow a diet. What is "borderline diabetes?

A. The body is essentially a chemical factory aimed at maintaining a relatively constant internal chemical environment. Foods eaten are digested into smaller basic units.

For example, the carbohydrate (starch) we eat will be digested into sugars which are absorbed into the bloodstream and then transported to cells of the body where sugar will be used for energy or converted to fat for storage.

For the sugar to enter the cell, it is neessary for insulin to be present. The person with diabetes is, most simply put, lacking insulin to some degree.

Thus, when a person with diabetes stresses their internal environment with a lot of sugar (by eating a large meal or a trip to the ice cream shop) the sugar is not removed from the bloodstream as it should be so the blood sugar remains higher than normal.

It is easy to see that an individual unable to produce any insulin and not receiving insulin therapy can potentially have a very high blood sugar.

That person with just a slight insulin lack may not quite have enough insulin to return the blood sugar to normal fasting levels. Many physicians refer to this as "borderline."

This individual's blood sugar is usually easily controlled with diet, or with diet and an oral blood sugar lowering medication.

Since the body is not controlling its blood sugar "on the inside" we must try to control it in this manner from the outside.

Thus, it is very important for all people with diabetes to follow the individually prescribed diet and take the medication prescribed by the doctor. Controlling blood sugar now is the easiest way to prevent the complications of uncontrolled blood sugar that can occur in the future.

Since November is diabetes month, a public diabetes screening will be held Tuesday, Nov. 18, at St. Eliabeth Medical Center in Pascal Hall from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. If you have questions about the screening, please contact nursing education at 798-3485 or 798-3840.

("Ask the Dietitian" is a service provided by the registered dietitians of St. Elizabeth Medical Center. If you have a question, write to "Ask the Dietitian," St. Elizabeth Medical Center, 2100 Madison Ave., Granite City, Ill. 62040.)

Chinese dish filling

Bear Paws in China are the real thing. To make the dish, use the right forepaw of a Changbai Mountain bear. Steam it in several changes of chicken broth. The large palm absorbs layers of chicken and pork as it becomes tender, then is braised in a thick sauce of soya and sugar. The meat is served on a platter surrounded by steamed artichokes or cabbage hearts.

A more standard Chinese dish is Beggar's Chicken. In the old, traditional preparation, a cook sprinkles salt, pepper and ginger on a plump chicken and wraps it in lotus leaves.

He encloses it in a thick coating of mud, and roasts it very slowly in an oven, grill or campfire. Mud from the shores of beautiful West Lake in Hangzhou, one of China's most scenic areas, bakes up absolutely bricklike. For real style, the cook brings the chicken to table in a long basket, breaks the adobe coating with a brass mallet and removes the leaf-wrapped, tender chicken carefully to a platter.

Three Duck Dish is a prized, elaborate dish. In Suzhou, this is prepared with a duck, a chicken and a quail. In other regions, chefs tend to use a large domestic duck, a smaller wild duck and a pigeon.

A single dish is served, with the pigeon inside the smaller duck which is inside the larger one.

The dish is served in a pot with the three heads sticking out. Diners eat first the outer duck, then the inner duck, then the pigeon. Each successively is more tender and more tasty.

By contrast, in the Qing Dynasty a similar five-bird dish was popular, with goose, domestic duck, wild duck, pigeon and sparrow. The truly elaborate dishes now, however, are only memories.

Written by Regan Carpenter, professor of education at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Take home a scoop of chefs' ideas from contest

While most home chefs probably will not carve white chocolate windmills, cut ice into woodland creatures or make petit fours that look exactly alike, there are culinary tricks for the table that go beyond a traditional sprig of parsley and orange slice as garnish.

● When decorating a cake, use a light-colored glaze, then alternate light and dark-colored shavings in large areas around the edge. Pipe some of this in small mounds on top (like birthday candle holders), center each with a raspberry and fill center top with the same fruit (Randy Goss, Country Club of Blue Springs, Mo.).

● Use mounds of fresh vegetables for centerpiece. Set up alternating colors, such as with rice, beans and nuts. Combine unshelled nuts, raisins, small red potatoes and red apples.

● Several chefs made potatoes look like mushrooms by cutting them so that an unpeeled half became the top and the stem was cut from the remaining half. One chef encased the finished "mushroom" in aspic so that the "stem" retained its white color. Another chef browned the edges, particularly the flat part of the "stem" and the "gills."

● A salad idea (Bob Parres, Bristol Bar and Grill) artistically set out fresh ingredients in slices, but also in whole and parts. In a large square area, each of two far corners showed a head of leafy lettuce. Between them was a bowl edged with green leaves holding in vertical rows Cobb salad ingredients of sliced mushrooms, crumbled bacon, diced tomatoes, crumbled blue cheese, small bits of turkey and diced red onion. In front of this were wedges taken from a whole tomato, whole and cut mushrooms, a whole avocado and slices, sliced hard-cooked eggs and red onion slices along with the whole onion.

● Simple arrangements echo appealingly. In a basket as a backdrop for fresh vegetables were long green onions, carrots with their tops and white corn with silks clinging behind them. All were placed in the same direction (Lucille's Country Summer House). On a large deep-dish peach cobbler was placed a single large peach with sliced peaches fanning around it.

● Improvise an imaginative solution. One display of red and green grapes had a raspberry placed among each bunch of light grapes. At home this could be by design or to compensate for an imperfect brunch.

Entertaining brunch serves informal setting for guests who like omelets

The autumn version of the popular summer barbecue is the fall brunch. The two meals have a lot in common. Both tend to be relaxed, easy and informal, featuring an appealing food array.

At both barbecue and brunch, the cook very often has company at the range. Guests seem to enjoy getting into the act, whether it is flipping burgers or omelets. By all means, let them help. It adds to the communal spirit, invites creativity and makes the meal move along for easy serving.

Brunch is the most flexible of meals. It may resemble breakfast or lunch, depending on the hour it is served. Some large buffet menus, like the ones served at restaurants, even feature selections that could be expected for supper.

Here are two tempting egg dishes which are elegant, but actually simple to prepare. Soups add flavor and give a fluffy texture.

Seaside Omelet counts on cream of shrimp soup for its delicate crabmeat and snow peas filling used as a filling and as a topper. Not only is this dish tasty, it is also beautiful to behold, with its pale pink filling and sauce, vibrant green snow peas and golden eggs.

To add a little spice to life, try Eggs Ranchero, a south-of-the-border style dish served on crisp tortillas. It could not be easier to season than when using crispy Spanish style vegetable soup, along with chili powder and shredded cheddar cheese. To prevent the yolks from running into the whites, carefully break them into a shallow dish first, then slide them into the skillet.

Either of these dishes is special enough to be the star of the meal along with an assortment of breads, rolls and muffins and a colorful basket of fruit.

Omelets can be made quickly, while guests are sipping coffee or margaritas. Have fillings and sauces ready to be added.

Have butter and pan sufficiently hot for eggs to "set" when they are added, but not too hot or they will toughen.

Eggs and fillings used should be at least 70° before being put into the pan. Never use eggs directly from the refrigerator.

Seaside omelet

4 tbsp. butter or margarine
1 large onion, thinly sliced
1 cup snow peas
2 tbsp. dry white wine
1 can (10½ oz.) cream of shrimp soup
5 oz. crabmeat, flaked (about 1 cup)
¼ cup milk
¼ tsp. dried or fresh dill weed
8 eggs
¼ cup water
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper

In 10-inch skillet over medium heat, in 2 tablespoons hot butter cook onion and snow peas until tender. Add wine. Cook 1 minute.

Stir in half the soup and all the crabmeat. Heat through. Keep warm.

In 1-quart saucepan, combine remaining soup, milk and dill weed. Over medium heat, heat through. Keep warm.

In medium bowl, beat eggs, water, salt and pepper.

In 8-inch omelet pan or skillet over medium-high heat, melt ½ tablespoon butter. Pour one-fourth of egg mixture (about ½ cup) into pan. As eggs set around edge, lift edge, tilting skillet to allow uncooked egg mixture to run under omelet.

When omelet is set but still moist on surface, increase heat slightly to brown bottom. Remove from heat. Spoon one-fourth of filling mixture over omelet. Lift edge of omelet and quickly fold in half. Slide omelet onto warm plate. Make remaining omelets, using steps above.

Serve with sauce.

Makes 4 servings, 389 calories each.

BRUNCH is an introduction to delicious foods that appeal as easy-to-fix to the host and hostess, as well as guests.

Eggs ranchero

1 can (10½ oz.) crispy gazpacho soup
1 tsp. chili powder
4 eggs
¼ cup shredded cheddar cheese
4 corn tortillas, warmed

In 8-inch skillet over medium heat, heat soup and chili powder to boiling.

Reduce heat to low. Carefully drop eggs into skillet. Cover. Simmer 5 minutes or until eggs are desired doneness.

Place warm tortillas on plate. Top each with one egg. Spoon sauce over each egg. Top with cheese.

Makes 4 servings, 184 calories each.

Hands Across America funds given in state

USA for Africa President Ken Kragen has just announced that the $50 million goal for the organization's first project, "We Are The World," has been surpassed by over $1 million.

Also outlined at a press conference in Los Angeles were state-by-state allocations and the distribution process for funds raised by the organization's second project, "Hands Across America." Illinois will get $688,956 for short-term and intermediate projects.

In his opening remarks, Kragen summarized the impact of Hands Across America and its continuing influence across the nation. He cited many post-May 25 events, inspired by Hands Across America, that have raised funds for local service providers as well as awareness of the issues of hunger and homelessness.

An overview of the finanacial side of the Hands Across America event was also presented. To date, Hands Across America has raised $24.5 million from public donations, and organizers project having another $16 million to $20 million to distribute to hunger and homeless organizations across the country.

Marty Rogol, executive director of USA for Africa, detailed the latest series of "We Are The World" grants in both Africa and the United States that collectively total $8 million.

An additional $5 million in funding to Ethiopia and Sudan has been approved by the USAFA board and specific project grants for those two countries will be announced next month.

Five domestic and over 70 Recovery and Development African grants from the We Are the World project as well as recent grants made by the USA for Africa medical task force were presented and described.

Rogol explained the Hands Across America grant process and funding guidelines. All 50 states will receive a specific allocation from the Hands Across America fund, and Rogol announced the state allocations.

Robert Greenstein, director of the Washington, D.C.-based Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, explained the formula by which the state allocations were made. Greenstein, a member of the USAFA domestic task force, saod the formula was based on the level of poverty, unemployment, population and need in each state.

Related Hands Across America projects, including the Hands Across America — The Official Record Book, Comic Relief cartoon book (both available at bookstores across the country), Hands Across America merchandise and the video special of the event, were also mentioned by Kragen.

Gaffner hoping to turn apparent loss into win

Bob Gaffner will be delayed until Nov. 25 in his bid to get a discovery recount of votes in the Nov. 4 election, but he isn't giving up hope.

Gaffner, who lost to the incumbent, U.S. Cong. Mel Price, by 1,162 votes unofficially out of more than 130,000 cast, had planned to file for the recounts with East St. Louis and the various counties in the 21st Congressional District as soon as those counties finished their canvasses of the votes.

But it was subsequently determined that the discovery recounts could not be sought until the state Board of Elections had done its own canvass and declared the results official, William C. "Chuck" Evers, attorney for Gaffner, said.

The state will certify the election results Nov. 24, and applications for the discovery recounts in East St. Louis and the various counties in the 21st District will be filed on Nov. 25, Evers said.

The district includes all of Madison County, most of St. Clair County and parts of Clinton, Bond and Montgomery counties.

A discovery recount would involve a second count of votes in 25 percent of the precincts in each county.

Gaffner, a Republican, has said he will seek a complete recount if the discovery recount indicates the outcome of the election could be different.

Even if the full recount showed Gaffner to have the most votes, it would still be up to Congress to declare him the winner and award him the 21st District seat.

Evers had filed a petition for the discovery recount in Madison County Nov. 6 — challenging the results at 43 Quad-City precincts and 12 other Madison County voting places — before it was determined that nothing could be done before the state had declared the vote totals official.

Evers had thought the discovery recounts might not be allowed until the state certified the election, but he decided it was better to try to file early with the counties just to be safe.

Evers said precincts Gaffner wanted included in the recount in St. Clair, Montgomery, Bond and Clinton had been chosen, but those precinct choices won't be disclosed until applications are filed for the discovery recounts.

There were a variety of reasons for choosing certain precincts for a discovery recount, Evers said.

One was if a precinct was abnormally late in reporting its totals. "Some precincts had 90 votes cast and did not turn in (their results) until 11 o'clock at night," he said.

A precinct might have also been selected if the votes for Gaffner and Price were significantly lower than the total number of votes cast in that precinct, Evers said.

This could occur, for instance, if someone didn't vote for either candidate, if there was a computer error, or if the voter failed to completely punch out the tab next to a candidate's name, he said.

A precinct may have also been chosen if Gaffner received a significantly lower percentage of votes in the precinct than his countywide average.

Precincts in which Gaffner was told there may have been irregularities were also considered for inclusion in the discovery recount, Evers said.

Trade, budget deficits called biggest problems

For the second consecutive year, bankers attending a seminar sponsored by Peat Marwick's St. Louis office named the budget deficit and the trade deficit as the two most critical economic issues facing the nation. The opinion was expressed in answer to a survey conducted among the 200 regional bankers attending the seminar, entitled "Exploring 1987 Banking Issues."

Eighty-nine percent predicted interest rates would remain flat or increase moderately in the next year; 92 percent indicated the high for the prime interest rate would be between 7 and 10 percent in '87; and 94 percent said the rate of inflation would remain flat or increase moderately.

On interstate banking, the bankers were equally divided as to whether interstate banking has had a positive or negative impact on their banks.

Ninety-three percent predicted St. Louis will remain the home of three to five bank groups with assets in excess of $3 billion each.

"Two years ago, significantly more bankers thought by 1990 most of the St. Louis-based large holding companies would be gobbled up by large out-of-state holding companies," said J. Alan Harkness, partner in charge of the St. Louis tax practice. "The bankers now have a different opinion on the pace and type of acquisition activity that will take place as a result of interstate banking."

Of the 13,500 commercial banks left today, 28 percent of the survey respondents believe 10,000 to 12,000 banks will be left in 1991, and 39 percent believe 8,000 to 10,000 will be left in five years. Only 5 percent said the number will drop to fewer than 6,000.

Workshops on tax changes

Federal tax code changes and how they will affect businesses and local governments will be covered during workshops in Collinsville next month, according to State Rep. Sam Wolf of Granite City.

"Changes in the federal tax code will make it necessary to alter some practices," Wolf said. "The workshops will allow business people and local government leaders to find out what modifications they need to make under the Tax Reform Act recently signed into law."

Wolf said the law makes changes in corporate tax rates, equipment depreciation, investment tax credits and business deductions, as well as procedures followed to issue bonds for water and sewer projects, redevelopment and economic development.

The workshops will be held at the Collinsville Public Library, 408 E. Main St., Collinsville, on Dec. 9. Business tax changes will be covered from 9 a.m. to noon and the government workshop will be held from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Persons interested in attending the workshop must contact the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs at 1-800-252-2923 for the business workshop or 1-800-562-4688 for the local government workshop.

Royce Realty honored on its sales volume

Century 21, Royce Realty Inc., received the first runner-up award for the third quarter of 1986 at the St. Louis Brokers Council sales rally held on Oct. 27 in St. Louis.

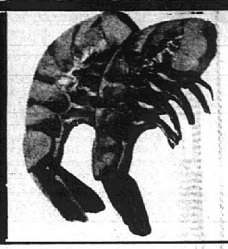

The award was based on the most production in "closed sales" per office for home sales in the St. Louis area, which includes 71 Century 21 franchises in a 60-mile radius of and including St. Louis.

Bernie Royce, the broker, also announced that seven sales associates will close over $1 million each in home sales this year, three of the seven have a good chance of closing $2 million each.

Royce explained why his office ranked so high; he credits it to the high visibility of the Century 21 system, having professionally qualified sales associates, and controlling almost one out of every four listings in Granite City.

Illinois under new Superfund charter

Illinois stands to gain by enactment of a new charter that strengthens the Superfund toxic waste cleanup program.

"For five years, Superfund has been tip-toeing when it should have been sure-footed in tackling a serious national problem. Now the resources will be a better match for the job," Sen Paul Simon said.

The new law authorizes $8.5 billion for Superfund cleanup efforts — a five-fold increase over cleanup work attempted to date under the five-year-old law.

The new charter orders more specific timelines and enforcement steps and allows more citizen input in decisions concerning toxic waste.

The Illinois lawmaker, a co-sponsor of the bill, said Illinois has two dozen sites on EPA's National Priority List that will come under Superfund's stringent standards and timetables.

Without the new law, EPA had said it would have shut down four current cleanup operations in Illinois and dozens of others across the country. Those Illinois sites are in Pembroke, LaSalle, Libertyville and Byron.

Simon was among several senators who wrote to President Ronald Reagan urging that he sign the bill and to Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., asking that he keep the Senate in session until the bill was signed. The president signed the measure on Oct. 17.

"It was clear we had the votes to override any veto," noted Simon.

Simon also was a leading force behind another key provision in the new Superfund charter: A provision bringing federal lands under the same strict reporting and cleanup requirements that apply to private lands.

One factor in the Senate's acceptance of the change was uncertainty over cleanup responsiblities associated with toxic waste at Crab Orchard Naitonal Wildlife Refuge, a federal reserve near Marion, Ill.

"Now we have a swift and sure process for a remedy at Crab Orchard," said Simon. He said the new law becomes the controlling language for future steps in the cleanup process at the refuge.

Phone Pioneers devote skills to community

Local Telephone Pioneers are among the more than 826,000 Telephone Pioneers of America who are starting a year-long celebration this month as the organization marks its 75th anniversary.

The world's largest volunteer organization of industrial employees, the Pioneer Association is composed of telephone industry veterans from throughout the U.S. and Canada.

In the beginning, they were literally pioneers: the men and women who had given America the gift of total communication. It was only natural that people who believed in universal service — a telephone for everyone — would determine that the same spirit of service on the job would be equally rewarding at home, a spokesman said.

The first Pioneers had a lot in common. They genuinely liked the people they worked with and shared the same basic principles: concern for each other and concern for the communities in which they lived. After decades of wiring a nation, three of them got together in New York City and circulated a petition that drew 139 names in 1910. By October 1911, 439 were members of the organization.

Pioneers will celebrate their anniversary in the same spirit of the past 75 years: serving others. For this anniversary, they will give special attention to projects involving the hearing impaired. They will continue with their many other projects, but will seek every opportunity to support those with deaf or hearing-impaired problems.

The first honorary member of the Pioneers was Alexander Graham Bell, the man who invented the telephone and who dedicated his life to working with the deaf and hard of hearing.

"Pioneers in the local Cahokia Council will be involved in a special project for the hearing impaired," Judith Scott, council president, said. Local Pioneers will join Pioneers in the other nine councils in Theodore N. Vail State Chapter 69 in completing the project.

"The project, the Illinois Hearing Aid Protection Program, will be carried out in conjunction with the Illinois department of Public Health," Scott said.

"We're excited about this joint venture," Jerry Adamson, president of the Theodore N. Vail State Chapter, said. "We worked with the Department of Public Health several years ago on another joint project for the hearing impaired which proved successful."

Cahokia Council will continue long-term and special community projects. These include assisting hospitals with Lifeline equipment; donating Sugar Babe, a little doll used to teach children to give themselves insulin shots; and presenting hand-operated tricycles (H.O.T.) to various agencies in the area.

The Pioneers have three goals, found in their motto and triangular emblem: fellowship, loyalty and service.

"Fellowship provides the neutral ground where people who have shared many years in the same industry can meet to renew friendships and preserve memories that trace the birth of telephone technology," Scott said.

"Loyalty relates countless contributions made by those who played a role in the industry's progress, or as Thomas Watson said, "My greatest pride is that I am one of the great army of telephone men, every one of whom has played his part in making telephone service what it is today.

"Service, to each other and anyone in need, ranges from giving the physically disabled the ability to move, to providing those with impaired vision the maximum use of whatever sight they have.

"It is this goal of service that has grown with Pioneering over the years. Pioneer chapters and their members serve thousands of projects, providing funds and volunteer support.

"The results are staggering. In 19[illegible] chapters in the U.S. and Ca[illegible] burned out more than 12 m[illegible] hours of community service, and raised more than $5 million in net profit for various service work.

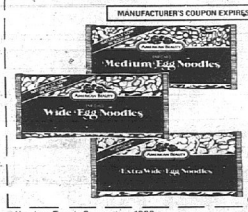

"The three goals form the basis of Pioneering, and each leg seems to strengthen the other. Each major service project is more ambitious than the one before, more demanding, more rewarding. Yet, social activities that reflect fellowship and loyalty increase as social events fill the calendar: dinners and dances, theater parties, weekend outings, travel tours, picnics, boat rides, fashion shows, sporting events, annual reunions and weekly gatherings.

"Pioneers donate their technical skills along with their dedication to serve. They tackle problems that require the unique skills many of them use on the job. Many Pioneers have invented and developed all kinds of devices now used in therapy for crippled, sight- and hearing-impaired patients.

"From national leadership in restoring the Statue of Liberty to a small club's effort to send a young girl to a special camp for the disabled, they bring their skills, their fellowship, their loyalty and their spirit of service to their towns and their nation."

Great Vacations Start At Expo

People who travel to the Suburban Journals Great Vacation and Travel Expo could find that their ultimate destination is Switzerland, Yugoslavia, the Mexican Riviera or Hawaii.

Brentwood Travel International (BTI), a St. Louis-based travel wholesaler, is giving away more than $10,000 worth of travel prizes at the expo, which will be Nov. 22 and 23 at the Doubletree Hotel Conference Center in Chesterfield.

The one-week trips for two include ski vacations in Adelbodden, Switzerland and Sarajevo, Yugoslavia; a spring, summer or fall vacation to a BTI Yugoslavian resort; a Bermuda Star cruise to the Mexican Riviera; and a week in the American paradise—Hawaii.

Stephanie Bogdanic, executive vice president of BTI, said the promotion is geared to give the three year-old company a higher profile in the community and show BTI's appreciation for the efforts of travel agents.

"We felt that this is our home town and the agents have been very helpful," she said. "We want to encourage the general public to book these trips through their travel agents."

Because skiing, along with sightseeing, will be featured at this year's BTI booth, the company is flying in ski experts from Switzerland, Yugoslavia and Italy to answer questions.

"A lot of people have been to Colorado, Utah and other places in the United States," Bogdanic said. "Skiing Europe is different. It's a little bit tougher, a little bit more challenging."

Visitors to BTI's booth will get a chance to trade stories with Switzerland's legendary mountain man Jakob Thommen, Swiss tourism official Peter Willen and two members of Yugoslavia's 1984 Sarajevo Olympics organizing committee—Leilja Markic and Snerzana Bilic. Markic and Bilic are members of a large BTI-Yugoslavian contingency that will attend the show.

Bogdanic said the Europeans will benefit from their visit as much as St. Louisans.

"It gives our people in Europe a chance to see us," she said. "It gives them a better understanding of St. Louisans and Americans generally."

To aid cultural understanding, BTI will be hosting a traditional Swiss "Raclette" for travel agents on Friday night. A Raclette is a wheel of cheese that is melted, sliced and served with pickles, onions and potatoes.

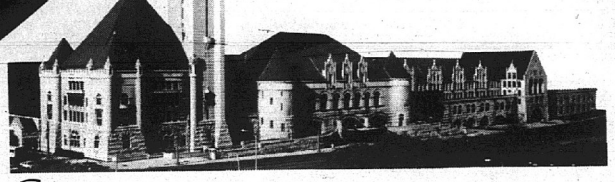

"We think the show gives St. Louisans a good view of what's out there (in travel bargains)," Bogdanic said.

When not working on the travel expo, Bogdanic and her husband Damir keep busy organizing wholesale tour operations that cover destinations in Europe and Hawaii, as well as ocean cruises.

Damir Bogdanic, a 20-year veteran in the travel industry, served in management for tour operations in Switzerland and central and eastern Europe before coming to St. Louis. Stephanie Bogdanic is a 15-year travel industry veteran.

Trailways wants to cut buses

Trailways Lines Inc. filed a petition with the Illinois Commerce Commission last week to abandon its three remaining passenger bus routes in Illinois.

Mount Olive is one of the communities affected by the latest step in a massive abandonment of interstate bus service in the state and across the nation in recent years.

One of the Trailways routes to be eliminated, between Chicago and St. Louis, stops in Mount Olive. However, an affiliated bus company, Deluxe Trailways, will continue to drop off and pick up passengers in the community twice a day southbound from Chicago and once a day northbound from St. Louis.

Mount Olive is one of only a few communities in this area left with any intercity bus service, according to Tom Myers of the ICC.

Collinsville still receives service on a Greyhound Chicago-St. Louis route.

Highland, St. Jacob and Troy are still flag stops on the Vandalia Bus Co. route between Effingham and St. Louis.

Since 1975, 20 communities in this region have been dropped from intercity bus routes.

More than 500 communities statewide were stops on intercity bus route in 1975. Now there are about 140, with several in jeopardy, Myers added.

The big wave of cancelled bus service has continued since 1982, when a federal law largely deregulating much of the industry went into effect. But many communities lost long-distance bus service in 1975-1982 as well, according to Myers.

Between 1975-82, Alton, Godfrey, Wood River, East Alton, Bethalto, Hamel, Livingston, Meadowbrook and Granite City in Madison County were dropped form bus routes. Edwardsville was dropped in 1983.

Jerseyville, Carrollton, Roodhouse, White Hall, Benld, Girard and Virden were also dropped during that period. Carlinville and Staunton were both dropped in 1983 from Greyhound routes.

Under the 1982 federal Bus Regulatory Reform Act, state commissions such as the ICC lost most of their authority over intercity bus service.

Basically, bus companies now need only to present evidence they are losing money on a particular route to cancel it.

Previously, the ICC could require continued service on a route out of "public need" if a bus company was still making money overall on its business within the state, Myers said.

Trailways' decision to abandon all of its remaining regularly scheduled passenger service in Illinois no later than April 1, 1987, will leave Greyhound as the only national bus carrier still operating in the state, although a number of smaller bus companies are still operating.

The company, in its petition last week, claimed operating losses for the fiscal year ending Aug. 31 of $112,137 on the Chicago-St. Louis route, with expenses of $1,035,490 compared to revenue of $923,353.

Trailways also plans to abandon its Effingham-St. Louis, Chicago-Rock Island and Chicago-Cairo service. It claims a total loss for the remaining Illinois operations of more than $1.35 million.

Audubon Society to meet Tuesday

The Southwestern Illinois Audubon Society will meet Tuesday, Nov. 18, at 7:30 p.m. at First Federal Savings and Loan, 300 St. Louis St., Edwardsville.

Gary Vondrasek of Edwardsville will present an illustrated program telling of his experiences camping in Big Bend, the largest national park in Texas. It is close to the boundary line between Texas and Mexico.

About the size of Rhode Island, the Big Bend region, arid and rugged, was a barrier to early explorers. Today, the park's mountains, canyons and desert landscape give pleasure to as many as 300,000 visitors a year.

BPW club to hear speak-off winners

Two members of the Granite City Business and Professional Women's Organization who participated in the Individual Development Course will speak at the Wednesday, Nov. 19, dinner meeting of the group to be held at Charlie's Restaurant.

Hobby auction Nov. 20

The Minerva Club held a business meeting in the home of Mary Dame, and final plans were made for the club's annual Hobby Auction to be held on Nov. 20 at the St. Elizabeth's Catholic Church cafeteria.

Chris Bieniecki, the recipient of the club's summer drama scholarship to Eastern Illinois University, presented a dramatic interpretation — a cutting from "The Bad Seed."

The club approved a $100 donation to Project Help for extras to be put in baskets for the holidays.

McDonald's sponsors essay contest

McDonald's Restaurants and Family Resources Inc., Collinsville, a local member agency of the National Family Resource Coalition, are co-sponsoring an essay contest in celebration of National Family Week Nov. 23-29.

Third-grade students from area schools will be asked to participate in the contest by submitting an essay on "Why I Am Thankful for My Family."

Representatives of local newspapers will judge the contest and McDonald's Restaurants will award first-, second- and third-place prizes.

Family Resources Inc., established in February 1985, is a non-profit agency that promotes positive adjustment and healthy emotional functioning through education and support to families. It has served 200 parents and children in Madison and St. Clair counties.

McDonald's Restaurants and Family Resources ask the public to join them in celebrating National Family Week by planning an activity in which the entire family can participate together, sharing in a positive exchange with children and/or parents or simply "taking time to let the family know you appreciate and are thankful for them."

Scholarships offered in church-related vocations

A liberal arts college in central Illinois is seeking nominees for a scholarship competition designed to meet the educational and financial needs of students interested in a church-related vocation.

Two merit scholarships with a combined value of $35,700 will be awarded to the top contestants in the annual Church Careers competition sponsored by MacMurray College in Jacksonville.

Eligibility extends to students of all ages, according to Dr. Jim Goulding, associate professor of philosophy and religion, who serves as program coordinator. Contestants should reflect a career interest in a field closely related to church work, Goulding said.

Nominees who meet the program's academic eligibility criteria will be invited to participate Jan. 18-19 in the on-campus competition. Entry deadline is Jan. 12.

Dr. Goulding said persons of all faiths are invited to compete for the scholarships which are awarded on the basis of demonstrated promise for leadership in the church and not solely on financial need. Each award is renewable for all four years of a student's undergraduate education at MacMurray.

"We are particularly interested in reaching students who wish to explore, evaluate and strengthen their vocational commitment," The college spokesman said in announcing the competition.

Among those currently enrolled in MacMurray's Church Careers Program are students working toward vocations in such areas as the ordained ministry, counseling, Christian education, music in the church, missionary service, church social work and ministry to the hearing impaired.

Details on the scholarship competition are available by contacting Dr. Goulding in the Departmetn of Philosophy and Religion, MacMurray College, Jacksonville 62650, or by calling him at 1-217-245-6151, extension 248. Information is also available from Jeri Teater, associate director of admissions at MacMurray.

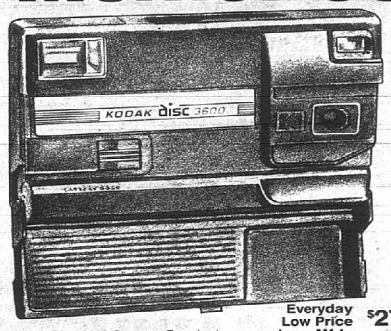

Winners will be announced in February and will enroll as freshmen in the fall.

Allow three months when for Social Security retirement pay

If people who are planning to retire early next year should apply soon for Social Security retirement benefits if they have not done so already, Oliver Holmes, Social Security manager in East St. Louis, said.

It is best to apply about three months before a person retires so Social Security checks can start shortly after a person's income from work stops. This way, a person can avoid a break in income.

Before a person actually applies, he or she should gather certain information and evidence to support his or her claim. This includes:

- The person's Social Security card or a record of the number.
- Proof of date of birth. The best evidence is an official or religious record of birth or baptism recorded before age 5.

Only original records or copies certified by the issuing agency can be used. If this record is not available, the person should submit the best evidence available. The best is often the oldest.

- Evidence of earnings for the last year. Form W-2 can be used by wage earners. Self-employed people should submit a copy of their self-employment tax return along with evidence showing the return was filed (a cancelled check, for example).

A person applying as a husband or wife will need the spouse's Social Security card and evidence of his or her date of birth. It is a good idea to also have the marriage certificate available, Holmes said.

"The people at the East St. Louis Social Security office can tell you if additional evidence is needed," he said.

"For further information or to schedule an in-office interview by appointment, call 482-9430, or if this is a long distance call, dial the Operator and ask for Enterprise 1-555."

Aerospace training for Ill. women

Two programs for Illinois residents titled "Project SPACE Women" have begun at Parks College of St. Louis University in Cahokia. Both are designed to encourage women to prepare for careers in the aerospace industry.

Project "Seniors Program in Aerospace Careers and Education" (SPACE) for women is funded by a $75,803 grant from the U.S. Department of Education, under the Women's Equity Act.

Thirty-five minority women from the Metro East area will be selected to participate. Special orientation sessions are planned for participants and their parents.

Activities include attendance at a six-week summer aerospace institute and completion of the first trimester of an aerospace curricula at Parks College.

Those in the program will receive information on obtaining financial aid to continue their college education. They will also be asked to speak to community groups concerning their experiences in the educational program.

A second program, "Special Program for Aerospace Career Education" (SPACE), seeks to encourage women to become airframe and powerplant mechanics and to help reduce the shortage of mechanics in the aerospace industry.

This effort is supported by a $39,405 grant from the Illinois State Board of Education. Fifteen women, ages 17 to 25, who are Illinois residents will be selected to receive training leading to the airframe and powerplant certificate.

After attending a summer aerospace institute at Parks College, they will enter the college's airframe and powerplant program. Upon completion, they will be asked to return to their communities and discuss aerospace career opportunities with other women.

Women who are Illinois residents and are interested in applying for either program may contact the admissions office at Parks College by calling 337-7500 or 1-800-851-7878.

Assumption gets dramatic victory, 34-32

By Gregg Ochoa
Executive Sports Editor

EAST ST. LOUIS — It was a heartstopper.

The Assumption Pioneers pulled off a wild one Saturday at home, edging Virden 34-32 in the Illinois Class 2A quarterfinals.

The winning touchdown came via the air with 47 seconds remaining as Eric Donaby hit Damion Hill with an 11-yard strike, capping off a scintillating fourth quarter rally.

Entering the final period, Assumption trailed the Bulldogs 32-20 and its season seemed all but over.

"This is the sweetest of victories," said Assumption coach Jim Monken. "When you win games like this, you always feel good, but at the same time, I feel bad for the other guys. Virden is one tough bunch."

With the victory, Assumption (9-3) advanced to the semifinals against Decatur St. Teresa. Virden, making its second appearance in the playoffs, bowed out at 10-2.

The game was a shootout, as each team piled up the yardage against the other defense. Virden had 439 yards in total offense. Assumption had 509 total yards.

Ironically, the winning score came via the pass. The Pioneers are mostly a run-oriented team. Prior to Saturday, they had completed just 22 passes.

"We're an outfit who likes to run the ball," Monken said. "But we can throw it if we have to."

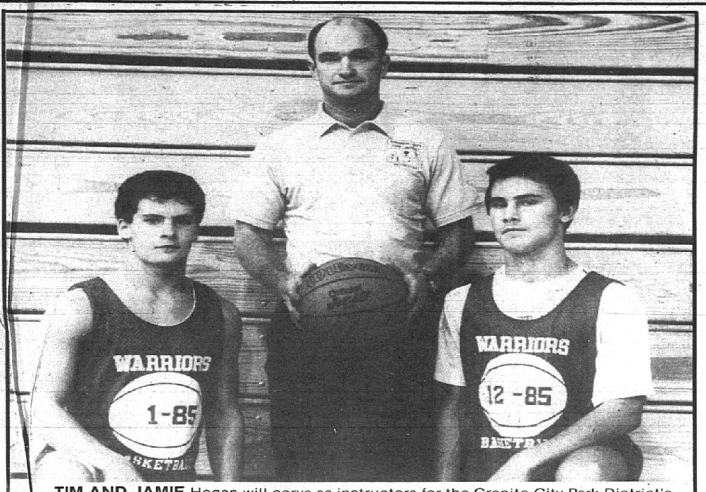

Donaby completed seven passes against the Virden defense, and two went for touchdowns. The senior quarterback had thrown only five touchdown passes all year.

The winning score was set up by a crucial fourth down run by Vernon Slaughter, who rushed for more than 100 yards. Slaughter's off-tackle burst moved the ball to the 11-yard line and set up the winning pass.

"We thought if we could get our hands on the ball, we could win," said Monken, who called all the plays in the winning drive.

"They were looking for the pass on fourth down and playing kind of soft in the middle and we were

Flyers eliminated by Vikings

Today is dead.

The East St. Louis Flyers, winners of the last three Illinois Class 6A high school football championships, were dethroned by the Homewood-Flossmoor Vikings at Parsons Field Saturday afternoon. The score was 18-15.

The Flyers, winners of 44 consecutive games until Granite City ended their streak earlier this year, had a spotty season. They blew their bid, but still compiled a 7-2 record going into the quarterfinals. But the Vikings took advantage of six East Side turnovers in the game.

The Flyers fell behind 18-0 early in the second quarter on a pair of touchdown runs (19 and 10 yards) by Reggie Brunson and a three-yard scoring toss from quarterback Jeff Lesniewicz to Rob Kozel.

Flyer head coach Bob Shannon replaced starting quarterback Lennie Gooch with sophomore Vernon Powell in the fourth quarter with East Side trailing 18-7. Gooch had connected with Lawrence Moore for a 65-yard touchdown in the third quarter.

The two combined on a 60-yard gain on the Flyers' next possession, but Moore fumbled at the end of the play. Powell drove the Flyers 34 yards in three plays late in the fourth quarter, with Marvin Lampkin going over from three yards out. Lampkin's two-point conversion made it 18-15.

Brunson, who finished with 136 yards on 24 carries, fumbled after a 23-yard gain at his own 48 with 2:15 left. Alvin Johnson recovered for East St. Louis.

Powell, after being sacked, completed four straight passes to the Homewood-Flossmoor 12 with less than a minute to go, but Randy Scianna intercepted the next throw, and the Vikings had to run only one play to kill the clock. Moore was the intended receiver on the fatal interception.

Althoff goes to semifinals with win over Shells

By Gary King
Correspondent

BELLEVILLE — Rather than digging through the Thesauras to try to find some new descriptions for the performance of the Belleville Althoff defense in Saturday's Illinois Class 4A quarterfinals, let's just sum up the matter in one simple word.

Typical.

Yes, the "Crusader Invaders" were at their stingy, stonewalling, omnipotent best in defeating Roxana 7-0 to advance to Saturday's semifinal round against Rock Island Alleman.

In fact, Althoff spent the better part of the afternoon shutting down Roxana and throwing a giant-sized monkey wrench into any hopes the Shells might have had of escaping with an upset.

But that's not to say the Althoff crew wasn't tested a time or two, not to say their backs weren't backed up to Roxana paydirt on a few occasions.

But in the end, those greedy monsters of the Metro East stood high atop the hill — a domain it's taken them eight shutouts to reach.

Before we let the defense rest until next time, let's take a peek at how they went about posting their verdict.

Roxana came into the game leading the area in offense with a 32 point per game average. They hadn't been shut out all season.

Shell halfback Terry Lawrence entered the contest as the second-best rusher in the area with 1,368 yards to his credit, an average of over seven yards per carry. Saturday, he was held to 41 yards on 12 attempts, which included a 12-yard carry in the fourth quarter.

Quarterback Scott Hamilton had completed 50 pass attempts for 856 yards and eight touchdowns coming into the game. Saturday, he was five for 14 for 59 yards with two interceptions.

Roxana, as a team, had racked up 3,939 yards of total offense during the course of the season. But in their final game of the campaign, they could muster only 142, including a 42-yard run by Hamilton and a 24-yard completion to split end Joe Whitworth.

Now, let the defense rest.

And speaking of carried away, you can bet Althoff coach Glenn Schott wouldn't have protested too much if his offense had gone ahead and bagged the win early.

And based on the proceedings in the early stages of the contest, it appeared likely the Crusaders were going to rack up a few points.

Cases in point:

On their second drive of the game, the Althoff backfield duo of Juan Cox and Tim Gula carried the ball down to the Shell 10. But Cox, who finished as the high rusher in the contest with 72 yards on 16 attempts, then fumbled on third-and-one, ending threat No. 1.

After three plays and a punt — a rythym the Roxana offense would abide by for most of the game — Lawrence's punt was short, and Althoff regained control on the Shell 36.

Following a five-yard run by Cox, Crusader quarterback Todd Marchand's pass was picked off by Scott Harper on the Roxana 18.

But despite the botched scoring opportunities, the defense hung tough. In fact, the Shells were able to generate only 29 yards of offense in the first half.

After the contest, Roxana coach Charlie Raich said he thought his troops could have pulled off the Editors note: The marching band is one of the most important factors in the success and spirit of high school athletic teams. Granite City High School is fortunate in having a band that is widely respected. In addition to being one of the best, it is also one of the oldest. Press-Record/Journal columnist Al Barnes took a look at the history of the band.

GC band one of oldest, finest in land

By Al Barnes
Correspondent

The first Granite City High School band was organized in the 1929 school year, at the height of the Jazz Age and just months before the United States took its worst economic nose dive, signalling the start of what we call the Great Depression.

It was math instructor and assistant athletic coach Edson Smith who first thought up the idea of starting a student band. In the fall of 1928, Smith called for volunteers and 12 budding musicians answered his call.

Entering Granite City at midterm was Gerald Walters, who has been the main source of the early information about the band. Jerry turned out to be a key member (on cymbals) in that pioneering band. Walters was recruited for the band by his buddy, Ray Henley.

Walters, a retired civil service employee of the Coast Guard, is still active in band music, playing once or twice a month in the Shriners Ainad Temple marching and concert band. His instrument is the sousaphone. He was persuaded to go out for the band by Henley, who challenged him.

"Jerry, we need someone to play cymbals," Henley said. "Do you think you can master them?"

The confident Walters said yes and added, "All it is is keeping time with the music, isn't it?"

Back in those days, it was a real rarity for a high school to have a band. In fact, believe it or not, there were a considerable number of people who didn't cotton to the idea at all.

"If they want to learn music, let them go to a music teacher," was their thought.

It was no secret that is was Smith who bought all the band's music and stands and helped in buying the instruments. Smith, in addition to his time with the band and math classes, was also the baseball coach and Bryon Bozarth's assistant in football, basketball and track.

Under his leadership, the band grew rapidly and was on its way to becoming one of the best in Illinois. From that original 12-pupil turnout, the band had an enrollment of 30 the next year and was well on its way, firmly supported by the public.

In that first enlarged band were the following: Harold Diemer, clarinet; Charles Lexow, clarinet; Monica Pitchford, alto sax; Jean Skinner, snare drum; Jerry Walters, cymbals; Ray Henley, bass drum; Ovid Sperry, tuba; H. Barrow, tuba; John Sanders, tuba; Earl Kahle, alto sax; Donn Kinney, trombone; Lois (Kinney) Jones, trombone; William Charbonnier, trombone (and center on the great 1929 football team); Robert Jamieson, cornet; Benjamin Bono, cornet; Marshall Hadaller, clarinet; Alvah Homan, clarinet; Ray Egeditch, alto sax; Ethel Marie Reischacher, bassoon; Frank Mercer, sax; Merlin Hiscott, baritone horn; Hugh Worthem, baritone horn; Alfred Henn, alto horn; Ray Hoekstra, cornet; Levin Hornsby, cornet; Norman Holsinger, cornet; Dave Thomas, clarinet; Wirt Holsinger, clarinet; Fred Heely, oboe; and Norman Osborne, cornet. Jack Johnson, one of the best music men in the city's history, returned to play in the band after graduation. He'd gone to work for a local plant, but the business slowdown led him to come back for extra school work.

In concert or marching, the boys wore dark coats and white duck pants; the girls wore white shirts and black jackets. There were no caps.

The man who probably had the most influence on the band was Lou Meek, who took over as band director in 1937. He was from Galesburg. Smith had moved on to Wood River, where he finished his career as principal of the high school.

Meek, like Smith, also taught math and worked closely with Bozarth. In fact, Meek and his band won its first Illinois high school championship the same year the Warriors won their only state basketball title at Champaign-Urbana in 1940.

Playing on that legendary team along with Andy Phillips were two members of Meek's band: Evon Parsaghian and Andy Hagopian, both on clarinet.

"There were more basketball players in that band in 1940, but I can't remember who they were now," Meek said.

Parsaghian made the basket which won the championship game on a pass from Phillips, who was the game's high scorer.

After Granite City adopted the unit district school plan, there was more money available for the band, and Meek decided to something a little extra special to award the hard-working members. So he started an annual trip south in the spring. On those trips, the band played a series of well-received concerts.

I can attest to the popularity of that idea. My oldest daughter, Patricia Barnes, now Mrs. Patrick Early, was a member of the band under Meek's baton and took two trips south, once to New Orleans and the other to Houston.

"Those trips never cost the school board a penny," Meek said. "The Parents Club raised the money to pay for each and every trip."

In 1968, the school board hired an assistant for Meek, Joe Owen, the present director of the band. Owens served as Meek's assistant from 1968 until Meek's retirement in 1974.

Under Owens, the marching band — around 100 members — that performed brilliantly during the recent exciting football season, has added three special groups: pom pon girls (32 members); a rifle squad (8) and a flag squad (22).

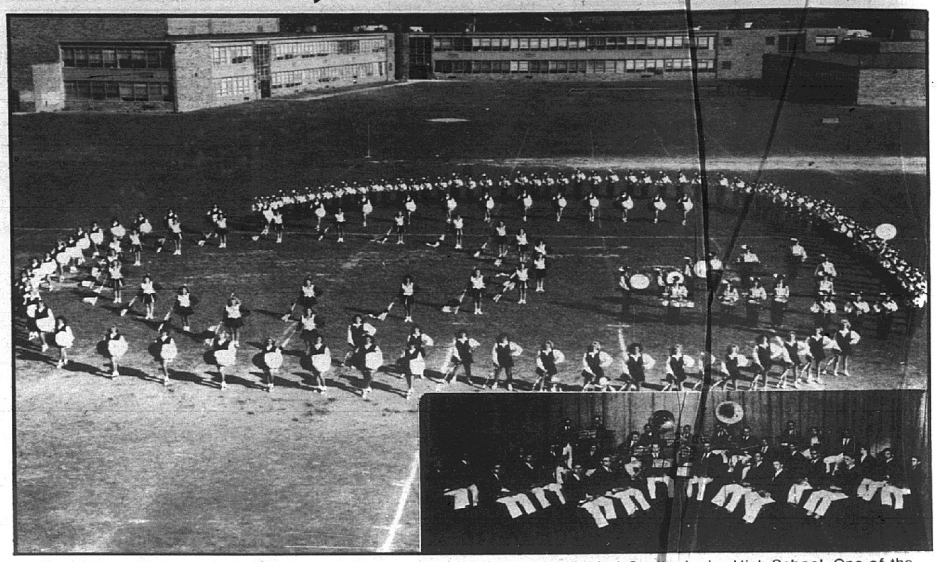

Last year, Dennis Deer was hired to serve as Owens' assistant. He spends a lot of time with the three special groups.

Some years back, the spring trips were dropped. Last year, however, Owens decided to revive the idea, with the trips coming every other year. Last spring, the band went to Gatlinburg, Tenn.

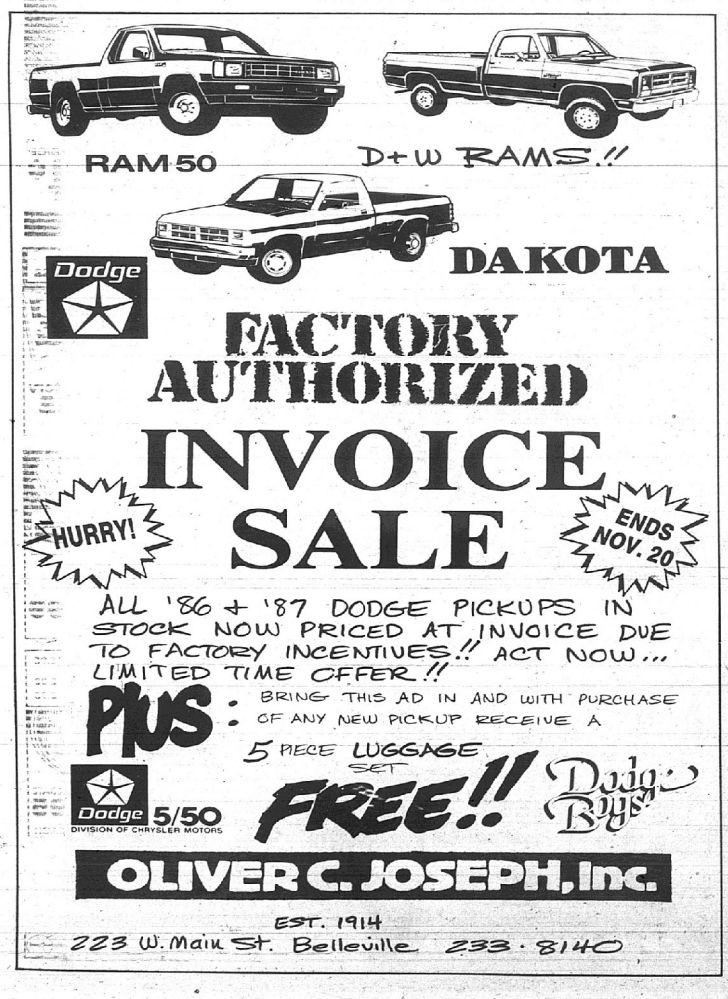

"The young people seemed to enjoy it very much," Owens said.

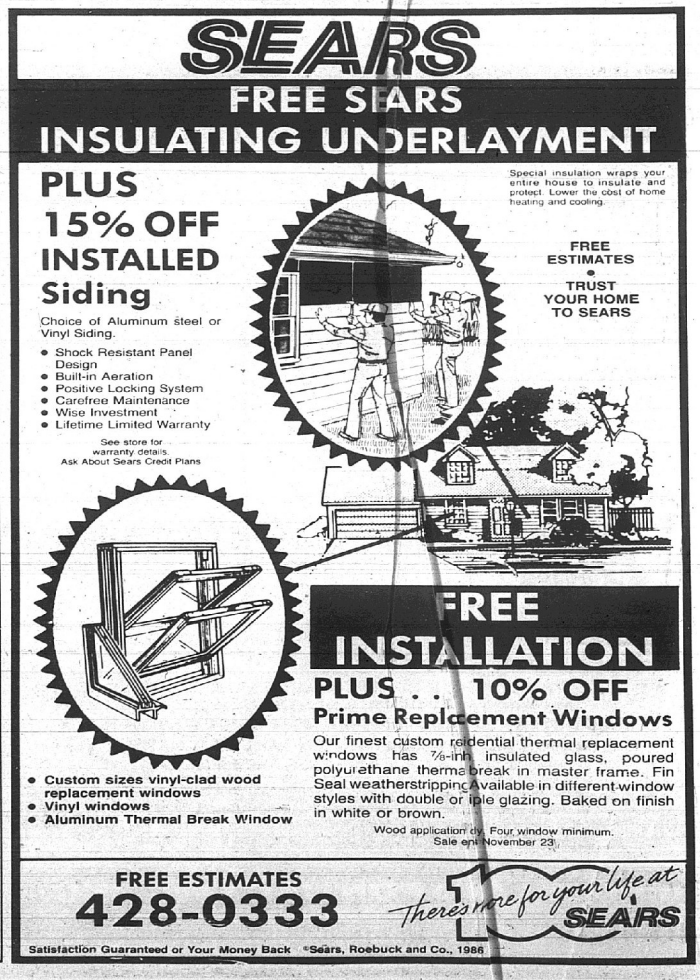

In addition to playing for special aud sessions throughout the year, Owens has scheduled a series of band concerts for the public.

Madison FCA sponsoring charity game

The Madison Senior High Fellowship of Christian Athletes, along with the Madison Middle School Huddle of FCA, is sponsoring the fourth annual Charity Benefit Basketball Game for needy families in Madison.

The benefit will be held Friday, Nov. 21, at the Madison High School gym from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. Last year, more than 575 cans were collected and 52 food baskets were given out.

The admission for the game will be $1 for students and $2 for adults. The FCA is asking that donations be brought in the form of canned goods (two cans for students and four for adults). They will be distributed to needy families throughout the community.

Rich Essington and his basketball team have agreed to put on a demonstration basketball game, pitting the juniors against the seniors. The preliminary game will feature the middle school seventh graders against the eighth graders for one half, and the middle school faculty against the FCA team for a half.

Mark Giles and Charles Steptoe are sponsors for the Madison Senior High huddle. Albert Collins is the sponsor for the middle school huddle.

Unit 12 administrators, principals and the district social worker will select the names of the needy families. Anyone having a particular family in mind can contact Arthur Carter, the high school principal, at 876-7010 before 4 p.m. Nov. 21.

There will be two turkeys given away at half time of the second game as a door prize.

upset. If only...

"What we really wanted to do was get some decent field position on them early," Raich said. "We felt that if we could've put some points on the board and got off to an early lead, that would put the monkey on their back.

"We thought that if we could pressure them when they made those early mistakes, they might've made some more.

But they didn't, and at halftime there wasn't an advantage in sight.

"At halftime, I told our guys that we were the only thing keeping them in the ballgame," Schott said.

Finally, midway through the third period, the Althoff offensive attack began to hit on all cylinders.

After taking over on their own 25, the Crusaders put together what would prove to be the deciding drive in the ballgame, as they drove 75 yards in 15 plays for the game's only touchdown. Mike Lugge capped the effort, as he punched his way into the end zone from five yards out on the third play of the final period.

"We started going outside more in the second half," Schott said. "And the offensive line started firing off the ball like they should.

"It seemed to put a little different pressure on them (Roxana) when we got that 7-0 lead."

Nonetheless, the Shells refused to roll over and serve as the Crusader's doormat into the semis.

After the Shells began a steady 11th hour march upfield, Hamilton gave Althoff's state title hopes a death blow when he dashed 42 yards around left end on fourth-and-six from the Crusader 47.

Enter, once again, the "Crusader Invaders," who maintained Roxana for three plays before defensive back Tom Myatt picked off Hamilton's fourth-and-goal attempt at the goal line, knocking the last bit of wind out of the Shells' last-gasp scoring effort.

Roxana would get one final chance to alter their fate with under two minutes on the clock, but that drive ended when Brett Kessler batted away Hamilton's fourth down toss on the Crusader five-yard line.

Raich said Althoff's gradual wearing down of the Roxana defense was what ultimately led to his squad's demise.

"Our defense just got tired," Raich said. "I was getting tired of watching them. Offensively, they were just putting too much pressure on our quarterback for us to move the ball.

"But we did stop them on some big fourth down plays. They didn't run over us. We kept waiting for our moment, but it never came."

Thanks, of course, to...

"This was a big challenge for our defense," Schott said. "Roxana had the top-rated offense in the area, and we knew they would be tough to stop. But we took it like a challenge, and we survived it."

In parting, Raich said he felt his squad had done an admirable job of making their presence felt.

"We were like the fly sitting on the elephant's behind," Raich said. "They had a hard time getting rid of us."

● Pioneers

able to break it to the outside."

The touchdown was Hill's first of the season and just his eighth catch all year.

"We knew they had a big play team," said Bulldogs coach Don Borgini. "They executed well and that's how they beat us."

The Pioneers scored first on its second play from scrimmage. Slaughter raced 45 yards for the touchdown just 51 seconds into the game.

Virden, a small town located 20 miles southwest of Springfield, responded with a seven-play drive as Darren Cole scored on a 19-yard run. The point after was wide and the score was tied 6-6.

Assumption made the most of the game's first critical penalty as an illegal fair catch on the Bulldogs gave the Pioneers a free first down.

On the next play, Donaby hit Shawn Gaines streaking down the sidelines for a 69-yard touchdown, making the score 12-6.

After a Dwayne Willis interception, the Bulldogs marched right back. The drive was capped off by Todd Cameron's 18-yard touchdown run.

Sophomore sensation Jacques Norris, slowed by a bad back, blocked the PAT and the score was tied 12-12 at the intermission.

"We couldn't stop them," said Monken, whose team will play Virden during the regular season the next two years. "They just kept coming after us."

Virden opened the second half, stringing together two solid drives and building its lead to 26-12. Both TDs were scored by Cameron, who with Cole, gained more than 100 yards on the ground.

The Pioneers pulled to within six points on a one-yard run by Slaughter with 18 seconds left in the third quarter.

But the Bulldog offense refused to buckle under. Virden took the ensuing kickoff and drove 52 yards for another touchdown with 7:56 left. That made the score 32-20.

Assumption answered the challenge, striking quickly on a 62-yard pass to Chris Harris. Donaby sneaked in for the conversion and the Bulldogs' lead was trimmed to 32-28.

The Pioneer defense, which had been riddled all day, then dug in as they stopped Virden at the 27.

That set up the wild finish.

With Donaby running the rollout option to perfection, Assumption moved the ball to the Virden 41 with 1:26 left on the clock.

"I thought we played the clock well, and Donaby did a good job under the pressure," Monken said.

Then, on fourth and one, Slaughter broke to the outside for a 29-yard gain to take Virden 11.

"I don't think we ran anything to the outside all day, because they shut that part of our game down," Monken said.

On the next play, Donaby found Hill in the front of the end zone.

"It's funny that a pass would be the deciding factor," Monken said. "We never even attempted a pass (against Carlyle)."

The Bulldogs got the ball back for one final chance, but the hopes were dashed when Greg Tolson intercepted with 16 seconds left.

Assumption, which has been in the playoffs six times since 1979, will be making its fourth appearance in the state semifinals. The Pioneers have never made it to the state championship game, losing in 1980, 1982 and 1983
